

THE FIRST BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED

GENESIS

The book of Genesis is the great book of beginnings in the Bible. True to the meanings of its Hebrew and Greek names (Hb berē'shith, "In Beginning" [based on 1:1]; Gk Geneseos, "Of Birth" [based on 2:4]), Genesis permits us to view the beginning of a multitude of realities that shape our daily existence: the creation of the universe and the planet earth; the origins of plant and animal life; and the origins of human beings, marriage, families, nations, industry, artistic expression, religious ritual, prophecy, sin, law, crime, conflict, punishment, and death.

CIRCUMSTANCES OF WRITING

Author: Since pre-Christian times authorship of the Torah—the five books that include the book of Genesis—has been attributed to Moses, an enormously influential Israelite leader from the second millennium B.C. with an aristocratic Egyptian background. Even though Genesis is technically anonymous, both the Old and New Testaments unanimously recognize Moses as the Torah’s author (Josh. 8:35; 23:6; 1 Kings 2:3; 8:9; 2 Kings 14:6; 23:25; 2 Chron. 23:18; 25:4; 30:16; 34:14; 35:12; Ezra 3:2; 6:18; Neh. 8:1; 9:14; Dan. 9:11,13; Mal. 4:4; Mark 12:19,26; Luke 2:22; 20:28; 24:44; John 1:17,45; 7:19; Acts 13:39; 15:21; 28:23; Rom. 10:5; 1 Cor. 9:9; Heb. 10:28).

Background: The Torah (a Hebrew term for law or instruction) was seen as one unit until at least the second century B.C. Sometime prior to the birth of Christ, the Torah was divided into five separate books, later referred to as the Pentateuch (literally, five vessels). Genesis, the first book of the Torah, provides both the universal history of humankind and the patriarchal history of the nation of Israel. The first section (chaps. 1–11) is a general history commonly called the “primeval history,” showing how all humanity descended from one couple and became sinners. The second section (chaps. 12–50) is a more specific history commonly referred to as the “patriarchal history,” focusing on the covenant God made with Abraham and his descendants: Isaac, Jacob, and Jacob’s 12 sons. Genesis unfolds God’s plan to bless and redeem humanity through Abraham’s descendants. The book concludes with the events that led to the Israelites being in the land of Egypt.

MESSAGE AND PURPOSE

Creation: God is the sovereign Lord and Creator of all things. God created everything out of nothing. There was no pre-existent material. He is the Creator, not a craftsman. This indicates that He has infinite power and perfect control over everything. He is separate from the created order, and no part of creation is to be considered an extension of God. All that God created is good, because He is a good and majestic God. God is Lord, maintaining sovereignty and involvement with His creation. God’s control over human history is so complete that even the worst of human deeds can be turned to serve His benevolent purposes (50:20).

Human life: Adam and Eve were created in the image of God, unique from the rest of creation, to have fellowship with Him. Humans are a paradox. On the one hand, people are the capstone of all God's creation, created in God's image (1:26-27) and possessing Godlike authority over all the created order within their realm (1:28-29; 9:1-3). On the other hand, they are sinners, using their God-given resources and abilities in ways that violate God's laws (2:17; 3:6) and hurt other people (3:8-11; 6:5,11-12). Even so, during their lifetime God expects people to follow His laws (4:7), and He blesses those who live according to His ways (6:8-9; 39:2,21). God wants to work through individuals to bring a blessing to every human life (18:18; 22:18; 26:4). Nevertheless, Genesis teaches that because of sin all human beings must die (2:17; 3:19; 5:5,8,11). Since all human life is created in the image of God, there is no person or class of humans superior to others. Humanity was created to live in community. The most fundamental unit of community is the family: a husband and wife (male and female) with children.

Sin: Evil and sin did not originate with God. Adam and Eve were created innocent and with the capacity to make choices. Sin entered the world at a specific place and time in history. Adam and Eve chose freely to disobey God, fell from innocence, and lost their freedom. Their sinful nature has passed to all other human beings. Sin resulted in death, both physical and spiritual. Sin has led to a world of pain and struggle.

Covenant: Genesis is a narrative of relationships, and certainly relationships grounded in covenants with God. These covenants provide a unifying principle for understanding the whole of Scripture and define the relationship between God and man. The heart of that relationship is found in the phrase, "They shall be my people, and I will be their God" (Jer. 32:38; cp. Gen. 17:7-8; Exod. 6:6-7; Lev. 26:12; Deut. 4:20; Jer. 11:4; Ezek. 11:20). God's covenant with Abraham is a major event both in Genesis and throughout the Bible. God called Abraham out of Ur to go to Canaan, promising to make him a great nation which in turn would bless all nations (Gen. 12:1-3). God repeats His oath in Genesis 22:18, adding further that it would be through Abraham's seed that all nations would someday be blessed. Paul applies the singular noun "seed" as a reference to Christ (Gal. 3:16). It is through Christ, Abraham's prophesied descendant, that the blessings of the Abrahamic Covenant would come to every nation.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

Genesis lays the groundwork for everything else we read and experience in Scripture. Through Genesis we understand where we came from, how we got into our fallen state, and the beginnings of God's gracious work on our behalf. Genesis unfolds God's original purpose for humanity.

Genesis provides the foundation from which we understand God's covenant with Israel that was established with the giving of the law. For the Israelite community, the accounts of the origins of humanity, sin, and the covenant relationship with God helped them understand why God gave them the law.

STRUCTURE

Genesis is chiefly a narrative. From a narrative standpoint, God is the only true hero of the Bible, and the book of Genesis has the distinct privilege of introducing Him. God is the first subject of a verb in the book and is mentioned more frequently than any other person. The content of the first 11 chapters is distinct from the patriarchal stories in chapters 12–50. The primary literary device is the catchphrase "these are the generations," in which generations means "family records." This phrase also serves as a link between the key person in the previous narrative and the one anticipated in the next section. Genesis could be described as historical genealogy, which ties together creation and human history in one continuum.

The Creation

1 In the <sup>a</sup>beginning <sup>b</sup>God created the heaven and the earth.

2 And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. <sup>c</sup>And the Spir<sup>r</sup>-it of God moved upon the face of the waters.

The First Day

3 <sup>d</sup>And God said, <sup>e</sup>Let there be light: and there was light.

4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided the light from the darkness.

5 And God called the light <sup>f</sup>Day, and the darkness he called Night. And the evening and the morning were the first day.

1:1 This opening verse of the Bible, seven words in the Hebrew, establishes seven key truths upon which the rest of the Bible is based.

First, God exists. The essential first step in pleasing God is recognizing His existence (Heb. 11:6). Second, God existed before there was a universe and will exist after the universe perishes (Heb. 1:10-12). Third, God is the main character in the Bible. He is the subject of the first verb in the Bible (in fact, He is the subject of more verbs than any other character) and performs a wider variety of activities than any other being in the Bible. Fourth, as Creator God has done what no human being could ever do; in its active form the Hebrew verb bara, meaning "to create," never has a human subject. Thus bara signifies a work that is uniquely God's. Fifth, God is mysterious; though the Hebrew word for God is plural, the verb form of which "God" is the subject is singular. This is perhaps an allusion to God's Trinitarian nature: He is three divine persons in one divine essence. Sixth, God is the Creator of heaven and earth. He doesn't just modify pre-existing matter but calls matter into being out of nothing (Ps. 33:6,9; Heb. 11:3). Seventh, God is not dependent on the universe, but the universe is totally dependent on God (Heb. 1:3).

1:2 Bible translations since the time of the Septuagint, the translation of the OT into Greek (ca 175 B.C.), have rendered the first Hebrew verb in this verse as was. However, in an effort to explain the origins of evil and/or find biblical evidence for an old earth, some Bible scholars have suggested that this verb should be translated as "became." Citing evidence in Isa. 14:12-21 and Ezek. 28:12-19, they believe a time gap, possibly a vast one, exists between the first two verses of the Bible, during which Satan led a rebellion in heaven against God. This allows interpreters to suggest that the early earth was without form, and void because Satan's rebellion marred God's good creation. However, the construction of this sentence in the original Hebrew favors the traditional translation ("was" rather than "became").

The sense of verse 2 is that God created the earth "without form, and void" as an unfinished and unfilled state. Working through an orderly process over a period of six days, God formed (days 1-3) and filled (days 4-6) His created handiwork. The "forming" was accomplished by means of three acts of separating or sorting various elements of creation from one another. The "filling" was carried out through five acts of populating the newly created domains. The deep, a single word in Hebrew, suggests an original state of creation that was shapeless as liquid water. The Hebrew verb translated moved, translated "fluttereth" in Deut. 32:11, suggests that the Spirit of God was watching over His creation just as a bird watches over its young.

1:3 A foundational teaching of the Bible is that God speaks and does so with universe-changing authority. The command in this verse is just two words in Hebrew.

1:4 Another basic truth of the Bible is that God saw; this means He is fully aware of His creation. Later writers directly declared that God is aware of events occurring throughout the earth (2 Chron. 16:9; Zech. 4:10). The term good, used here for the first of seven times in this chapter to evaluate God's creative work, can be used to express both high quality and moral excellence. The physical universe is a good place because God made it. God found satisfaction in His labor. This first instance where God divided created the twin realms of light and darkness, day and night. God's activity in the material world parallels the role He also performs in the moral universe, that of the righteous Judge distinguishing between those who live in moral light and those who do not (1 Thess. 5:5).

1:5 In ancient Israel, the act of naming an object, place, or person indicated that you held control over it (35:10; 41:45; Num. 32:42; Deut. 3:14; Josh. 19:47; 2 Kings 23:34; 24:17). When God named the light and the darkness, He asserted His lordship and control over all of time. In ancient Israelite and modern Jewish tradition, evening is the transition point from one day to the next.

1:6 Based on a verb that can refer to covering something with a thin sheet of metal (Num. 16:39; Isa. 40:19), the noun firmament always refers to the vast spread of the open sky.

1:7 God's second act of separation was to divide atmospheric water from terrestrial water. Thus He began the process of giving form to the material world. The clause it was so, found six times in this chapter, emphasizes God's absolute power over creation.

1:8 Heaven can refer to the earth's atmospheric envelope (v. 20), outer space (v. 15), or the spiritual realm where God lives (Ps. 11:4).

1:9 God's third and final act of separation created oceans and continents.

heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so.

10 And God called the dry land Earth; and the gathering together of the waters called he Seas: and God saw that it was good.

11 And God said, Let the earth <sup>a</sup>bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the <sup>b</sup>fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth: and it was so.

12 And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

13 And the evening and the morning were the third day.

The Fourth Day

14 ¶ And God said, Let there be <sup>c</sup>lights in the firmament of the heaven to divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and <sup>d</sup>for seasons, and for days, and years:

15 And let them be for lights in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth: and it was so.

16 And God <sup>e</sup>made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and <sup>f</sup>the lesser light to rule the night: he made <sup>g</sup>the stars also.

17 And God set them in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth,

18 And to <sup>h</sup>rule over the day and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness: and God saw that it was good.

The Fifth Day

20 And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven.

21 And <sup>i</sup>God created great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly, after their kind, and every winged fowl after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

22 And God blessed them, saying, <sup>j</sup>Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth.

23 And the evening and the morning were the fifth day.

The Sixth Day

24 ¶ And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle, and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so.

25 And God made the beast of the earth after his kind, and cattle after their kind, and every thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

The Creation of Man

26 ¶ And God said, <sup>k</sup>Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and <sup>l</sup>let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the

1:10 In His third and final act of naming, God demonstrated His authority over all of the Earth and the Seas. This contrasts with what Israel's polytheistic neighbors believed about the range of divine powers. Their gods were not all-powerful, but instead exercised authority over a limited territory. The God of Genesis 1 holds dominion over everything at all times and in all places.

1:11-12 In preparation for the rise of animal and human life, God provided an abundant supply of food. The consistent biblical teaching is that "like begets like" (Luke 6:44; James 3:12); Gen. 1:11-12 establish that principle for plant life. While five of the six days contain at least one act of creation evaluated as good, only the third and sixth days have this statement more than once.

1:14-15 The events of day four complement those of day one, filling the day and night with finished forms of light. The various lights, or "light-giving objects," were worshipped as gods in the cultures that surrounded ancient Israel. In Genesis, however, the sun, moon, and stars are portrayed as servants of God that would fulfill three roles: separating the newly created realms of day and night; marking seasons so that those who worshipped the Creator could keep their appointed festivals (cp. Lev. 23:4,44); and providing light upon the earth.

1:20 The fifth day's events complement those of day two, filling the newly formed heavenly domains above and the watery regions below.

1:21 The great whales are literally "sea monsters." This Hebrew word (tanninim) is also translated "serpent" (Exod. 7:9) and "dragon" (Deut. 32:33; Ps. 74:13; Isa. 27:1; 51:9). In this context, the word designates all the large mammals and fish of the sea. The reuse of the verb created (Hb bara; cp. v. 1) emphasizes God's authority over the large sea-creatures. This point was especially significant to the ancient Israelites, whose neighbors worshipped Rahab, a mythical sea monster (Isa. 51:9).

1:22 The first of three blessings God pronounced in the creation narrative occurred when God blessed the water animals and birds. This blessing is similar to the one for persons, but lacks the commands to "subdue" and "have dominion" (v. 28).

1:26 God's use of plural pronouns (us . . . our . . . our) to refer to Himself has raised many questions [3:22; 11:7; Isa. 6:8]. At least five different suggestions have been put forward to explain them: they may be references to (1) the Trinity, (2) God and His angels, (3) God and creation, (4) God's majesty as expressed by a literary device known as the "plural of majesty," or (5) a polytheistic view of God. Since the Bible teaches elsewhere that there is only one God (Deut. 6:4; Mark 12:29; 1 Cor. 8:4), the fifth option is not tenable.

The two Hebrew words translated as image and likeness are often understood as having the same meaning. But some interpreters suggest that "image" refers to the ability to reason, with "likeness" referring to the spiritual dimension. What exactly is the "image" of God? Since the Bible teaches that God is a Spirit (John 4:24), fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

<sup>28</sup> And God blessed them, and God said unto them, <sup>c</sup>Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth.

The Giving of Food

<sup>29</sup> ¶ And God said, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; <sup>d</sup>to you it shall be for meat.

<sup>30</sup> And to <sup>e</sup>every beast of the earth, and to every <sup>f</sup>fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life,

I have given every green herb for meat: and it was so.

<sup>31</sup> <sup>a</sup>And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day.

The Seventh Day

<sup>2</sup> Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and <sup>b</sup>all the host of them.

<sup>2</sup> <sup>1</sup>And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made.

<sup>3</sup> And God <sup>b</sup>blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it: because that in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made.

<sup>4</sup> ¶ <sup>k</sup>These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens, many commentators believe it refers to the non-material aspects of a person—our moral sensibilities, intellectual abilities, will, and emotions. Based on God’s commands in Gen. 1:28, others have suggested that it consists of the role humans are to play on earth—their rulership over the planet and its resources, and secondarily the physical, mental, and spiritual abilities that enable them to fulfill that role. The NT teaches that Christians will someday bear the image of Christ (1 Cor. 15:49; 1 John 3:2).

1:27 The creation of humanity is the crowning event of chapter 1, as shown by the fact that created is repeated three times. The verb “created” (Hb bara) is the same one used in 1:1, referring to a kind of creative activity that only God can do. The term “man” (Hb adam) is used elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible to refer to humanity in general, not just males (7:21); all people, both male and female, are created in the image of God (cp. James 3:9). People are the only beings that are created in the image of God (Gen. 9:3-6). The Bible never lumps people into the category of animals. Instead, it separates the creation of people from all other beings and attributes the most privileged roles in creation to humans alone.

1:28 In this the longest of the five blessings found in the account of creation, God gave humanity five different commands. Implicit in the first three commands is God’s blessing on the institutions of marriage and the family. The word replenish does not mean to do something that has been done before, but to fill the earth for the first time. The final two commands, to subdue the earth and have dominion over the animal kingdom, express God’s blessing on the use of the planet’s renewable and nonrenewable natural resources. Of course, only the wise use of these resources permits people to fulfill God’s command to fill the earth. A similar command to the survivors of the flood is shorter, having only the first three verbs in it (9:1).

1:29 Here the word meat means food. After the flood in Noah’s day, God issued additional dietary guidelines that expanded humanity’s permitted food sources beyond herbs (plants) and trees to include meats, that is, “flesh” (9:3-4).

1:30 Here again the word meat simply means food. The Bible does not address the issue of diet for carnivorous and insect-eating animals.

1:31 This is the seventh, final, and most elaborate use of the word good in the account of the seven days of creation.

2:1 This verse serves as a complement to 1:1. Together, the two set the first six days of creation apart from the sacred seventh day.

2:2 This is the first use of the number seven in the Bible, a number that will play an especially significant role in the religious and social life of ancient Israel (4:15; 7:2-4,10; 21:28-31; 29:18-20). On the seventh day God rested, thus setting an example for people—who are made in His image—to follow [Exod. 20:8-11; Deut. 5:12-14]. Though God rested from all his work which he had made, this is not to say that God has abandoned the universe. In the NT Jesus affirmed that God is still at work in the world, even on the Sabbath [John 5:16-17].

2:3 This is the only instance during the creation process when God blessed a unit of time. The term sanctified is applied in the Bible to something set aside for service to God.

2:4 The Hebrew word toledoth, translated here as generations, is used 11 times in the book of Genesis to introduce new units of material [5:1; 6:9; 10:1; 11:10,27; 25:12,19; 36:1,9; 37:2]. Here it introduces a detailed elaboration of some key aspects of the creation account that opens the book of Genesis (1:1-2:3). Special emphasis is placed on the events of day six. Here the phrase in the day is a Hebrew idiom for “when” [Exod. 5:13]. Verse 4 includes the first use of God’s personal name, rendered in English as the LORD, the most commonly used noun in the OT. The Hebrew spelling is transliterated as “YHWH,” a word Jews considered so sacred that they would not permit themselves to pronounce it. Its accurate pronunciation is thus unknown, though common suggestions include “Jehovah” and “Yahweh.”

2:5 A plant or herb of the field was one which required cultivation.

THE UNIQUENESS OF THE GENESIS CREATION STORY

Kenneth A. Mathews

While there are many similarities between parts of Genesis and ancient Near Eastern (ANE) myths, there are also fundamental differences. These are seen especially in the significantly different views of the Creator and creation. Five features in particular distinguish the biblical creation account and perspective. So distinctive theologically is the biblical teaching from that of Israel's neighbors that it is best explained as the result of divine revelation, not the imagination or "religious genius" of the biblical author.

THE IDENTITY OF GOD

The basic identity of God as revealed in Genesis is distinct from all other ANE conceptions. The Lord God did not have an origin and did not have a female counterpart. In fact, Genesis does not present any kind of theogony (origin of the gods). God simply always existed. The concept of fertility was a common explanation among the ancients for how the world was created. It was believed that gods and goddesses joined in sexual union and thus produced the world, just as man and woman can come together to create a child. Israel's God, however, was revealed to be asexual, neither male nor female. According to other ANE religions the world (or parts of it, like the sun) was a divine "Thou," whereas in Genesis the world was revealed to be an "it," a non-supernatural reality brought into existence by a supernatural God.

NO RIVAL GODS

While polytheistic views dominated the ANE, Genesis revealed that God has no divine rivals. A common explanation for creation among the ancients was that an epic battle had raged between creator gods and anti-creation deities. Ultimately, the creator god overcame the anti-creation forces/gods, in some cases using the slain bodies of their enemies to make the stuff of the world. In Genesis there is no rival opposing the Creator. All creation obeyed the voice of God, as expressed in the recurring phrase, "and it was so" (1:7).

CREATION OUT OF NOTHING

In Genesis the Creator by inherent authority as Sovereign Lord spoke creation into a functional, well-ordered existence. There was no eternal pre-created matter, such as was believed in the ancient myths. Genesis says God spoke all things into origination. This does not mean He uttered words that possessed inherent magical powers. Rather, the irrevocable power of God's creation words was grounded in the authority of God Himself. Unlike the nature deities whose existence was limited to the world system, God existed before creation and above creation. Also, creation was not the emanation of divine person or power. It was separate from Him, a new reality subject to His will.

THE VALUE OF HUMANITY

In Genesis the Creator bestowed special value on humanity. Human beings in the ANE view were not indispensable to the operation of the world, whereas in Genesis they were essential as its chief caretakers. The Lord blessed humanity, assigning man and woman the responsibility to propagate and to rule over the earth (1:26-28). ANE myths explained the purpose of humanity as servants who met the servile interests of the gods. The Bible elevates the person and role of humans who were "crowned . . . with glory and honour" (Ps. 8:5), made in the divine image. God prepared the resplendent Garden of Eden for humanity, giving humanity meaningful work and purpose (Gen. 2:8-18). Also, Genesis presents the first humanity as individuals who were the progenitors of the human race.

THE SABBATH

In Genesis the Creator provided the seventh day as a holy day of rest and celebration (2:1-3), which was later memorialized in Israel's Sabbath (Exod. 20:8-11). The Sabbath was unique to Israel, not tied to the movement of the stars, such as in the ancient preoccupation with astrology. The Lord was revealed as Master of the material universe and of time. All creation was invited to join in the knowledge of God and in the worship of Him as Creator and Sustainer of all things.

in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the LORD God had not <sup>a</sup>caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man <sup>b</sup>to till the ground.

6 But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground.

The Garden of Eden

8 ¶ And the LORD God planted <sup>g</sup>a garden <sup>h</sup>eastward in <sup>i</sup>E'-den; and there <sup>j</sup>he put the man whom he had formed.

9 And out of the ground made the LORD God to grow <sup>k</sup>every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; <sup>l</sup>the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, <sup>m</sup>and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

10 And a river went out of E'-den to water the garden; and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads.

Man to Care for the Garden

15 And the LORD God took the man, and <sup>x</sup>put him into the garden of E'-den to dress it and to keep it.

16 And the LORD God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat:

17 <sup>y</sup>But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, <sup>z</sup>thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof <sup>aa</sup>thou shalt surely die.

2:6 This source of water, a bountiful blessing that provided moisture for the whole face of the ground in the time of human innocence, later became a source of judgment on humanity's sin (7:11).

2:7 The Hebrew verb translated here as formed is used elsewhere in the Bible to describe the potter's profession (Jer. 18:4; Zech. 11:13); God acts here as the divine potter, skillfully fashioning man of the dust of the ground. But people are more than just material beings. It was only when God breathed into the man's nostrils the breath of life that Adam became alive. God is Spirit (John 4:24); thus, when God breathed into him, Adam and all later human beings became a unique mix of the physical and the spiritual. The Hebrew phrase translated as living soul is used elsewhere in Genesis to describe other creatures (1:20,24,30; 9:12,15-16). Nevertheless, humans are in a class by themselves since they alone are made in God's image.

2:8 The location of Eden is unknown; suggestions include Armenia, Iraq, Africa, and Arabia. Changes in geography caused by the flood in Noah's day (7:11) make it unlikely that Eden will ever be discovered. The Hebrew word "Eden" literally means "pleasantness."

2:9 God's concern for beauty is seen in the fact that the trees He caused to grow were pleasant to the sight. The Lord's love of beauty will later be extended to Israel's religion, which will make use of furnishings fashioned by expert craftsmen using expensive materials (Exod. 25-40). Of course, God's beautiful created works were also practical, being good for food.

2:10 The abundance of the waters supplied in the garden of Eden is indicated by the fact that it served as the headwaters for four rivers.

2:11 The location of the Pison river is unknown. A land known as Havilah existed in the region of the Arabian peninsula at a later point in time (1 Sam. 15:7), but the pre-flood land may have represented a different locale.

2:13 The pre-flood locations of the Gihon river and Ethiopia are unknown. Later, biblical Ethiopia was located in the region of modern Ethiopia and Sudan (Esther 1:1; Ps. 68:31; Acts 8:27).

2:14 The Hiddekel (Tigris; Dan. 10:4) and Euphrates rivers, as well as Assyria, probably correspond to geographical features associated with modern Iraq.

2:15 The Hebrew word translated as put literally means, "caused to rest"; this pre-sin state of rest anticipates the "rest" ("comfort"; 5:29) that would again come to humanity because of righteous Noah, as well as the rest that God would again give Israel following its episode of calf worship (Exod. 32:1-21; 33:14). As a being created in God's image, Adam, like God, was to be a worker. Without the taint of sin, work was an undiluted blessing. The verb translated here as dress literally means "serve." Adam's second task in the garden was to keep it. The verb is used elsewhere to refer to the action of God toward His people (Ps. 121:3-4) or the work of a military guard (SS. 5:7).

2:16 The seriousness of God's order is reflected in the fact that it is introduced by a two-verb phrase in Hebrew: commanded . . . saying. This formula was used frequently to express royal decrees (1 Sam. 18:22; 2 Sam. 18:5). God gave Adam both freedom and limits, the freedoms vastly outnumbering the limitations. After all, Adam could eat freely from every tree of the garden except one.

2:17 The only limit God placed on Adam was eating of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, which apparently imparted divine wisdom (3:22). Eating the forbidden fruit represented Adam's rejection of God as the source of divine wisdom and his choice to pursue wisdom apart from God. God's penalty for disobedience was stated especially forcefully in the original language, with a two-verb construction, "dying you shall die" (thou shalt surely die). Death would certainly come to Adam and all humanity after him; but the death that God warned about would be more than physical (3:19). Besides severing the cord of life, sin would shatter the harmonious relationship that existed between Adam and his environment (3:17-18), his wife (3:16), and God.

18 ¶ And the LORD God said, It is not good that the man should be alone; <sup>a</sup>I will make him an help meet for him.

Adam Names Living Creatures

19 <sup>b</sup>And out of the ground the LORD God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air; and <sup>c</sup>brought them unto Ad'-am to see what he would call them: and whatsoever Ad'-am called every living creature, that was the name thereof.

20 And Ad'-am gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field; but for Ad'-am there was not found an help meet for him.

The Creation of Woman

21 And the LORD God caused a <sup>d</sup>deep sleep to fall upon Ad'-am, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof;

22 And the rib, which the LORD God had taken from man, made he a woman, and <sup>e</sup>brought her unto the man.

23 And Ad'-am said, This is now <sup>f</sup>bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was <sup>g</sup>taken out of Man.

The First Marriage

24 <sup>h</sup>Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.

25 <sup>i</sup>And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not <sup>j</sup>ashamed.

The Temptation

3 Now the <sup>k</sup>serpent was <sup>l</sup>more subtil than any beast of the field which the LORD God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?

2 And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden:

3 <sup>m</sup>But of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

4 <sup>n</sup>And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die:

5 For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then <sup>o</sup>your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

2:18 The theme of God providing for Adam's needs (see note at v. 8) is picked up again here, as God declared that Adam's solitude is not good. God created the man with a need to relate to one who was meet, or "complimentary," for him, and now God will fill that need.

2:19 As He did with man, God formed animals out of the ground, but they did not receive the breath of life from God (v. 7) nor the image of God.

2:20 By giving names to the animals, Adam showed that he ruled the animals and that he perceived the nature of each animal (see note at 1:5). Adam's understanding of their nature only highlighted the differences that existed between him and the rest of God's creatures: no helper was found as his complement (see note at v. 18).

2:21 At what must have been a moment of loneliness in Adam's life, God stepped in to create one who would perfectly meet Adam's need. Because God took one of his ribs to use as His raw material, the woman would correspond perfectly—though not identically—to Adam. Like Adam, the woman possessed God's image. The fact that she was not taken either from the man's head or his foot may suggest that the woman was not to rule over the man (1 Cor. 11:3), nor the man to oppress the woman (1 Pet. 3:7).

2:23 Adam's first recorded words express his delight with God's handiwork and his recognition of the unique suitability of God's last recorded creation in the creation accounts. As with no other piece of divine craftsmanship, this one was singularly suited for the man, being bone of his bones and flesh of his flesh. Adam expresses dominion by choosing a name for God's final created being, yet the divine order calls for a reciprocity exhibited in male servant leadership and female submission, both of which are modeled in Jesus Himself. The Hebrew term 'ishshah,

Woman, identifies her as the feminine complement to 'ish, the man.

2:24 God's timeless design for marriage is declared here. The one flesh relationship certainly involves sexual union, but also includes a husband and wife coming together in spiritual, mental, and emotional harmony.

2:25 Because the devastating effects of sin had not yet ravaged nature or humanity, there was no need for clothing. Even without barriers to shield them from their environment and each other, Adam and Eve could live without shame. Later, in the time of the patriarchs and kings, clothing was associated with dignity. Accordingly, prisoners of war were not permitted to wear any clothing, slaves wore very little clothing, and the highest social classes wore the most clothing.

3:1 The Hebrew word for subtil means crafty or shrewd in a negative sense (Job 5:12), or prudent in a positive sense (Prov. 14:8).

3:3 The woman's claim that God said, neither shall ye touch the tree, lest ye die, goes beyond anything recorded in God's instructions to Adam. Therefore either Adam had given his wife an additional command, or else Eve exaggerated the command as Satan tempted her to view God as selfish and overly restrictive. If Adam added to God's command, he almost certainly had a good motive—after all, if Eve never touched the tree, she certainly wouldn't eat its fruit. However, the sad truth is that when people add to the word of God, they create confusion and trouble.

3:4-5 The serpent, recognizing the woman's confusion, found a point of attack. Knowing that the woman would not surely die by merely touching the fruit, he boldly contradicted what she had reported to be God's command. He then skillfully lied (John 8:44) by distorting God's word (Matt. 4:6), implying that God had prohibited people from eating

The Fall of Man

6 And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, <sup>a</sup>and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; <sup>b</sup>and he did eat.

7 And <sup>c</sup>the eyes of them both were opened, <sup>d</sup>and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons.

8 And they heard <sup>e</sup>the voice of the LORD God walking in the garden in the cool of the day: and Ad'-am and his wife <sup>f</sup>hid themselves from the presence of the LORD God amongst the trees of the garden.

9 And the LORD God called unto Ad'-am, and said unto him, Where art thou?

10 And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, <sup>g</sup>and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

11 And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat?

12 And the man said, <sup>h</sup>The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

13 And the LORD God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, <sup>i</sup>The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

The Curse

14 And the LORD God said <sup>j</sup>unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and <sup>k</sup>dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life:

15 And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between <sup>l</sup>thy seed and <sup>m</sup>her seed; <sup>n</sup>it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

16 Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; <sup>o</sup>in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children; <sup>p</sup>and the fruit only to keep them from becoming as knowledgeable as He. The woman was now fully deceived (1 Tim. 2:14).

3:6 Since the woman did not die when she touched the fruit—in contradiction to what she had thought God said (v. 3.)—she did eat. Though Adam was with her at the time, he did nothing to stop her. Perhaps he wanted to eat of it as much as the woman did, but fearing the consequences, used his wife as a “guinea pig” to make sure it would not cause instant death.

3:7 As the serpent had indicated, the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew, but instead of producing god-like power, the knowledge brought only a sense of human inadequacy, fear, and shame.

3:9 God took the initiative in reaching out to sinful humanity. This pattern—humanity sinning, then God seeking out sinners—becomes the primary theme of the rest of the Bible. Its ultimate expression is found in Jesus Christ, who came to seek and to save people alienated from God because of their sin (Luke 19:10); in Him God once again walked on the earth in search of sinners. The all-knowing God asked Adam, Where art thou? for Adam’s benefit, to encourage Adam to face his sin.

3:10 Rather than walking with God as righteous men of later generations would do (Enoch, 5:22; Noah, 6:9), Adam hid from Him.

3:11 Through the use of two direct questions God brought Adam to accountability for his sin. God does not overlook sin, but He can be gently firm in confronting it.

3:12 Adam answered neither of God’s questions. Instead he sought to shift the blame first to the woman and then to God.

3:13 The woman passed the blame to the serpent and admitted that prior to eating, she was beguiled (1 Tim. 2:14).

3:14 Though accountability began with God’s confrontation of Adam, judgment began with the serpent. Because of the serpent’s key role (being used of Satan) in bringing sin into the human experience, it would be permanently consigned to the position of ultimate shame. Just as conquered kings were made to lie on the ground under the foot of their conquerors (Josh. 10:24), so now the serpent would live under the feet of humanity.

3:15 This verse is known in Christendom as the protoevangelium, or “first good news,” because it is the first foretelling of the gospel of Jesus Christ. God announced here that a descendant would someday deal the serpent (meaning Satan) a fatal blow on the head (Rev. 20:2,7-10). The NT writers understood Jesus Christ to have fulfilled this prophecy (Heb 2:14; 1 John 3:8). The NT also indicates that God would work through the church—those indwelt by the Spirit of Christ—to destroy the works of the devil (Rom. 16:20). The assertion that the snake would only strike his opponent’s heel foreshadows that Christ’s wounding on the cross would not be permanently fatal.

3:16 Even though the woman had been deceived into eating the forbidden fruit, she was still held accountable for her act. Notably, however, the word “cursed” is not contained in God’s words to her (vv. 14,16). Two penalties were imposed; both struck at the heart of a woman’s roles in life. More than would have been the case had sin not entered creation, bearing children would add to the sum of sorrow in the universe (God said he would multiply, not originate, woman’s labor pains). Marriage would also be marred; though the woman’s desire would be for her husband, sin would mar God’s plan for marriage and create tormenting inequality and subjugation. The latter is a description of the ravaging effect of sin on a husband-wife relationship, not a prescription for abusing one’s wife. The NT teaches that marriage should reflect the relationship of Christ with the church (Eph. 5:24-25) and be characterized by a husband’s understanding of and respect for his wife (1 Pet. 3:7).

thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall <sup>a</sup>rule over thee.

18 <sup>g</sup>Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and <sup>h</sup>thou shalt eat the herb of the field;

19 <sup>i</sup>In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: <sup>j</sup>for dust thou art, and <sup>k</sup>unto dust shalt thou return.

20 And Ad'-am called his wife's name Eve; because she was the mother of all living.

21 Unto Ad'-am also and to his wife did the LORD God make coats of skins, and clothed them.

Man Sent from the Garden

22 ¶ And the LORD God said, <sup>l</sup>Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and <sup>m</sup>take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

23 Therefore the LORD God sent him forth from the garden of E'-den, <sup>n</sup>to till the ground from whence he was taken.

24 So he drove out the man; and he placed <sup>o</sup>at the east of the garden of E'-den <sup>p</sup>Cher'-u-bims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.

Cain and Abel

4 And Ad'-am knew Eve his wife; and she conceived, and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the LORD.

2 And she again bare his brother A'-bel. And A'-bel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was <sup>q</sup>a tiller of the ground.

3 And in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought <sup>r</sup>of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the LORD.

4 And A'-bel, he also brought of <sup>s</sup>the firstlings of his flock and of the fat thereof. And the LORD had <sup>t</sup>respect unto A'-bel and to his offering:

5 But unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, <sup>u</sup>and his countenance fell.

6 And the LORD said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen?

3:17 Because Adam listened to his wife's voice in preference to what God commanded (2:17), a curse would strike at the heart of a fundamental relationship in his life as well. Adam's relationship with the ground would now be forever damaged by sin. All the days of his life he would experience sorrow (cp. the woman's labor pains, v. 16) as he worked to bring forth the fruit of the earth.

3:18 Prior to the first couple's sins God is only recorded as having put trees in the garden (2:8-9); now there would also be thorns and thistles. Prior to sin, humanity had only to reach up to get food; now they would have to bend their backs to gather plants of the field.

3:19 The simple plucking of fruit in order to eat food (lit "bread") would now be replaced by backbreaking labor and the sweat of man's face. Working daily in the soil, Adam would be continually reminded that he was dust and that he would return to dust.

3:20 The new name Adam gave his wife (cp. 2:23) emphasizes the woman's life-giving role that counteracts the curse of sin, which is death.

3:21 The LORD God graciously provided for humanity's need for clothing in a way superior to what Adam and Eve had done with fig leaves. The use of animal skins anticipates the OT system of animal sacrifices (Lev. 1; 3-7; Num. 15:1-31). In the NT, the apostle Paul spoke of a day when God would clothe His people with immortality (1 Cor. 15:53-54; 2 Cor. 5:4), thus providing the complete undoing of the curse of humanity's sin.

3:22-23 Because of sin, people now knew good and evil experientially. Since the gift of life was directly tied to obedience, man's sin meant that the penalty of death must be enforced. Ironically, the LORD God sent Adam forth from the garden so that Adam would not reach (lit "send forth his hand") for the garden's fruit.

3:24 Following their sin, the first couple went east, a direction associated with departure from God in numerous biblical examples. Other instances of eastward movement in Genesis include Cain's journeys after judgment (4:16), humanity's migration toward Babel (11:2), and the migration of Keturah's sons (25:6). Cherubims are used as an artistic motif in the tabernacle (Exod. 25:18-22; 26:1) and are also mentioned in Ezekiel 10 and 11. The ironies continue as the man who was once commanded to "keep" the garden (Gen. 2:15) is now kept from the garden.

4:1 Adam and Eve now begin to fulfill God's original command to them, to "be fruitful" and "multiply" (1:28). Eve, whose name means "Life," now becomes the life-giver. Eve knew that the child was more than the result of her and her husband's love; it came into being from the LORD. A wordplay in the Hebrew suggests that the name Cain (qayin) came from the verb "have gotten" (qaniti) in Eve's comment, I have gotten a man.

4:2 The name Abel means "Breath"; the term is used elsewhere in the OT to refer to that which passes away quickly and is unsubstantial (Ps. 62:9; Eccl. 1:2).

4:3 Cain's sacrifice marks the first mention of an offering unto the LORD in the Bible. The Hebrew term used here suggests a freewill gift given to an authority (Judg. 13:19).

4:5 Ironically, the first recorded offering given to God was also the first one rejected by Him. Since cereal offerings were authorized in the law of Moses, the fact that Cain's offering was of vegetation rather than an animal is not why God had not respect for it. Cain's wroth reaction suggests that the offering was rejected because of sin in his heart, not the nature of his offering. See note at verse 7.

7 If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door. And unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

Abel Murdered

8 And Cain talked with A'-bel his brother: and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against A'-bel his brother, and <sup>a</sup>slew him.

9 ¶ And the LORD said unto Cain, <sup>b</sup>Where is A'-bel thy brother? And he said, ¶ I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?

10 And he said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's blood <sup>c</sup>crieth unto me from the ground.

The Curse of Cain

11 And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand;

12 When thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength; a fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.

15 And the LORD said unto him, Therefore whosoever slayeth Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him <sup>h</sup>sevenfold. And the LORD <sup>i</sup>set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him.

Cain Dwells in the Land of Nod

16 ¶ And Cain <sup>j</sup>went out from the presence of the LORD, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of E'-den.

17 And Cain knew his wife; and she conceived, and bare E'-noch: and he builded a city, <sup>k</sup>and called the name of the city, after the name of his son, E'-noch.

18 And unto E'-noch was born I'-rad: and I'-rad begat Me-hu'-ja-el: and Me-hu'-ja-el

4:7 The Bible makes it clear that God had rejected Cain's offering because of Cain's wicked lifestyle (1 John 3:12). The animal-like description of sin as lying is reused in 49:9 to describe a lion couching. The parallel use of desire in this verse and 3:16 suggests that sin wishes to be as intimate with humanity as a woman is with her husband. The only way to avoid this is to be its master, not its companion.

4:8 In a move that demonstrates premeditation, Cain waited until they were in the field and slew Abel where there were no human witnesses. This was the first death of a human being, realizing the curse of human death pronounced against Adam (2:17; 3:19).

4:9 God's use of questions with guilty sinners continues here (v. 6; cp. 3:9-13). By claiming he did not know where his brother was, Cain added lying to his sin of murder. God once made Adam a keeper (Hb shamar) of the garden (2:15). Cain now asked if he was to be his brother's keeper (Hb shamar). The Bible's answer to Cain's question is yes (Lev. 19:18; Matt. 22:39; Gal. 5:14).

4:10 Unlike his father Adam (3:12), Cain never confessed his guilt, even though God directly confronted him. Though Abel never spoke in the preceding narrative, his blood now cried out from the ground.

4:11 God's judgment began with a curse whose wording in the Hebrew parallels the curse placed on the snake (3:14). This is particularly fitting since both were liars and murderers (John 8:44). It is possible to translate God's statement here as "You are more cursed than the ground." The curse against a murderer is repeated in the law of Moses (Deut. 27:24).

4:12 Cain's punishment destroyed his livelihood as a farmer and turned him into a vagabond.

4:13 Cain's response has several possible English renderings. The Septuagint and Martin Luther translated it as, "My sin is too great to be forgiven," while early rabbis took it as a question: "Is my sin too great to forgive?" In view of Cain's previous and later actions, the KJV translation (My punishment is greater than I can bear) seems best. He expresses anguish, but no remorse.

4:14 Just as his father Adam had been driven out (Hb garash) of the garden, Cain noted that God was driving him out (Hb garash) from the surface of the soil. Since he would be hid from God's protective face (presence), he feared that other descendants of Adam and Eve (5:4) would slay him to avenge Abel's murder.

4:15 True to His compassionate and forgiving nature (Exod. 34:6-7), God made provisions to protect Cain despite his sin.

4:16 Cain's departure from the presence of the Lord was both physical and spiritual (Jon. 1:3,10). "Nod" means "Wandering." The land of Nod is never again mentioned in the Bible. Perhaps the phrase simply referred to any area where Cain wandered. The notation that Cain departed to live east of Eden identifies him with other sinners who also moved east (see note at 3:24).

4:17 The parallel tracks of Adam's and Cain's lives—sin, judgment by God, banishment, and eastward movement—continue with the notation that after these things Cain knew his wife (cp. v. 1). In spite of his grave sin, Cain still fulfilled the divine command to be fruitful and multiply (1:28). On the other hand, Cain's efforts to build a city were one more expression of disobedience to God, for God had ordained Cain to be a wanderer (v. 12). The city of Enoch is not mentioned elsewhere in the Bible, and its location is unknown.

Cain's genealogy in verses 17-24 has similarities with Seth's genealogy (5:3-32). Two of the names in both lines are identical (Enoch, Lamech) and others are similar (Cain/Kenan; Methushael/Methuselah). In addition, the seventh member of both genealogies (Cain's Lamech, Seth's Enoch) are given special emphasis, and both conclude with a person who has three named sons. Notable differences exist as well: Seth's genealogy is longer and contains lifespan details, but it omits any mention of occupations or wives' names.

20 And A'-dah bare Ja'-bal: he was the father of such as dwell in tents, and of such as have cattle.

21 And his brother's name was Ju'-bal: he was the father of all such as handle the harp and organ.

22 And Zil'-lah, she also bare Tu'-bal-cain, an instructor of every artificer in brass and iron: and the sister of Tu'-bal-cain was Na'-a-mah.

23 And La'-mech said unto his wives, A'-dah and Zil'-lah, Hear my voice; ye wives of La'-mech, hearken unto my speech: for I have slain a man to my wounding, and a young man to my hurt.

The Birth of Seth

25 ¶ And Ad'-am knew his wife again; and she bare a son, and called his name Seth: For God, said she, hath appointed me another seed instead of A'-bel, whom Cain slew.

26 And to Seth, to him also there was born a son; and he called his name E'-nos: then began men to call upon the name of the LORD.

Adam's Descendants

5 This is the book of the generations of Ad'-am. In the day that God created man, in the likeness of God made he him;

2 Male and female created he them; and blessed them, and called their name Ad'-am, in the day when they were created.

3 ¶ And Ad'-am lived an hundred and thirty years, and begat a son in his own likeness, after his image; and called his name Seth:

4 And the days of Ad'-am after he had begotten Seth were eight hundred years: and he begat sons and daughters:

5 And all the days that Ad'-am lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died.

4:19 More details are provided in this genealogical section for Lamech, the seventh member of Adam's line through Cain, than for any other. His three named sons made crucial contributions to human culture. However, the description of Lamech's life paints a troubling picture of an individual who lacked respect for marriage or human life. By taking two wives Lamech became the first polygamist, a violation of God's intentions for marriage [2:22; Mark 10:6-8].

4:20 Jabal brought about key advances in the profession of the nomadic herdsman—those who cared for sheep, goats, and cattle (Hb miqneh). This represents an advance beyond what Abel had done since he is only known to have tended sheep and goats (v. 2; Hb ts'o'n).

4:21 Jubal advanced civilization in the area of the musical arts, playing a key role in developing two of the most important musical instruments of the ancient world, the harp and organ. This "organ" may have been a type of flute or reed pipe.

4:22 Tubal-cain's metallurgical advances in working brass (or bronze) and smelting iron would prove crucial for crafting tools and weapons.

4:23 Lamech's speech, the longest by a human being in this point in the Bible, represents the dark climax of the Cainite genealogy. His level of retaliation against a man for wounding him and a young man who merely hurt him goes far beyond the biblical limits [Exod. 21:23-25], and his boast of killing for vengeance foreshadows the "violence" that led to the flood in Noah's day [Gen. 6:11].

4:24 Using twisted logic, Lamech seemed to suggest that God would provide him with greater protection than He did Cain since he had killed double the number of men.

4:25 The name Seth (Hb sheth) is a wordplay on the verb translated appointed (Hb shath). Once again (v. 1), Eve recognized God as the ultimate source of her offspring. The expectation that Seth would be more righteous than Cain is established by Eve's statement that God gave him to replace Abel. In fact, the family line that ultimately produced Jesus is traceable through Seth (Luke 3:38).

4:26 The name Enos, like the name Adam, means "humanity." In a very real sense Enos's birth marks a new and brighter beginning for humanity, as men now began to call upon the name of the LORD. This is Jehovah, God's personal name [Exod. 3:15; 6:3].

5:1 This is the second of 11 toledoth sections in Genesis [2:4; 6:9; 10:1; 11:10,27; 25:12,19; 36:1,9; 37:2]. The Hebrew term toledoth ("generations" or family records) refers to "those who were given birth." Each section contains genealogical information and/or historical accounts regarding the descendants of the people or things named in the section title.

Only the Sethite genealogy is called the generations of Adam, even though Cain's descendants are equally related. This is because only offspring in Seth's line are noted as being righteous. In this genealogy, emphasis is given to the fact that Adam was created in God's likeness, a characteristic that would be passed along to future generations (v. 3).

5:2 Key themes of chapter 1 are repeated and extended in the Sethite genealogy: (1) God created both male and female, thus making it possible for humanity to fulfill the divine mandate to create offspring; (2) people, though made in God's image, are not God; they were created; (3) humanity has been specially blessed by God; and (4) humanity is under God's authority, as demonstrated by the fact that God assigned them their name.

5:3 Whereas God "created" Adam, Adam begat Seth. Whereas Adam was made in God's image, Seth was made in Adam's image. Like God, Adam named the one he was responsible for bringing into being.

5:4 The phrase begat sons and daughters is repeated 10 times in the Sethite genealogy, but it never occurs in the Cainite genealogy. The line of Seth more faithfully fulfilled God's command to be fruitful and multiply [1:28].

5:5 Only three individuals are said to have lived longer than

26 And Me-thu'-se-lah lived after he begat La'-mech seven hundred eighty and two years, and begat sons and daughters:

27 And all the days of Me-thu'-se-lah were nine hundred sixty and nine years: and he died.

Lamech's Descendants

28 ¶ And La'-mech lived an hundred eighty and two years, and begat a son:

29 And he called his name No'-ah, saying, This same shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground <sup>e</sup>which the LORD hath cursed.

Adam's 930 years. They are Noah (950), Jared (962) and Methuselah (969). The notation that he died emphasizes the solemn truth of God's curse following Adam's sin (3:19). The fact that it is repeated seven other times in this chapter demonstrates the lasting consequences of Adam's sin.

5:9 The name Cainan (Hb qeynan) is closely linked to Cain (Hb qayin), and may mean "Metalworker."

5:12 The name Mahalaleel may mean "One who praises God."

5:18 The name Enoch means "Dedication."

5:21 Enoch, as the seventh member of the Sethite genealogy, is given special emphasis. The name Methuselah may mean either "Man of the Spear" or "Man of Shelah."

5:22 Enoch's life stands in stark contrast to Lamech, the seventh member of Cain's line. Whereas Lamech was notorious for his immorality and violence, Enoch walked with God, much as Adam must have done before his sin in the garden (3:8) and as Noah did later (6:9). The phrase "walked with God" suggests living a life consistent with God's will as well as experiencing fellowship with Him. Perhaps it was Enoch's entrance into parenthood after he begat Methuselah that inspired him to take his relationship with God seriously. Imagine the level of spiritual maturity Enoch must have attained after 300 years of living wholeheartedly for God! Jude 14 indicates that Enoch was a prophet.

5:24 The description of Enoch's life differs from the others in two remarkable ways. First, his righteousness is highlighted through the double notation that Enoch walked with God (vv. 22,24). Second, the description of the end of his life is mysterious: he was not; for God took him. The NT confirms the meaning of this phrase: "Enoch was translated that he should not see death" (Heb. 11:5). Enoch's experience, like Elijah's later (2 Kings 2:11), anticipates an experience reserved for Christians living at the end of time (1 Cor. 15:51-55; 1 Thess. 4:17).

5:27 Methuselah's 969 years marks him as the oldest person in the Bible. Ancient genealogies commonly attribute long life spans to people. While the Bible's numbers are exceptionally large compared to modern life spans, they seem much more credible than those found in the Sumerian king list, which states that one individual reached the age of 72,000!

5:29 The Lamech of the Sethite genealogy (v. 28) stands in sharp contrast to the Lamech of the Cainite genealogy. Both Lamechs are the only individuals in their respective genealogies to have quotations attributed to them, but Cain's Lamech spoke of murder and vengeance (4:23-24),

30 And La'-mech lived after he begat No'-ah five hundred ninety and five years, and begat sons and daughters:

2 That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they <sup>d</sup>took them wives of all which they chose.

3 And the LORD said, <sup>e</sup>My spirit shall not always strive with man, <sup>f</sup>for that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years.

4 There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown.

5 ¶ And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every while the Lamech in this chapter spoke words of hope and deliverance. The name Noah means "Rest/Relief." Prophetically, Lamech declared that the son born to him would live up to his name: he would comfort humanity concerning our work and toil of their hands that had resulted from Adam's sin.

5:31 A final point of comparison between the Cainite and Sethite Lamechs is the use of sevens. The first Lamech mentioned Cain's sevenfold curse and pronounced a 77-fold curse on anyone who would bring death to him, while Seth's Lamech lived 777 years before death came to him. For the numbers-conscious original audience, the author's inclusion of a figure consisting of three sevens would have trumped the first Cain's numbers, and would have added a sense of completeness and perfection to the portrait of this man's life.

5:32 The mention of Noah at the end of the Sethite genealogy serves as both a conclusion to this section of Genesis and a subtle introduction of the central human character in its next major section. A similar technique will be used in the case of Terah and Abraham (cp. 5:32 and 6:9 with 11:26-27).

6:1-4 These verses transition to the account of God's greatest act of nature-based judgment on sinful humanity. Positively, these opening verses demonstrate humanity's faithfulness in fulfilling God's command to "multiply on the earth" (1:28). This brief portion of Genesis is one of the most controversial sections of the entire Bible. Major disagreements surround each of these verses. Careful study of the Hebrew text does not end the debates; if anything, it only sharpens them. The controversies are listed below.

6:2 This verse begins to build the case that there was something terribly wrong about the way in which God's command to multiply was being fulfilled. Using language that parallels the sequence leading to humanity's first sin in the garden (3:6), the sons of God first saw something that they thought was good, and then took what they desired.

Controversy surrounds the phrase "the sons of God." Three different basic positions have been staked out regarding the identity of these "sons." They have been understood as heavenly beings (an ancient Jewish position, still accepted by many today), as kings or men of high social status, or as men from the godly family line of Seth.

Favoring their identity as heavenly beings—likely angels—is the fact that elsewhere in the OT the phrase "sons of God" refers only to heavenly creatures (Job 1:6; 2:1; 38:7) and that the NT refers to fallen angels (2 Pet. 2:4; Jude 6). Those who accept this view hold that the sin that prompted God's anger in this passage was a violation of Gen. 2:24, brought about by sexual relations between human and angelic beings, resulting in the creation of the Nephilim. But this view has its difficulties. For instance, Jesus indicated that angels do not marry (Matt. 22:30), and Paul used the phrase "sons of God" to refer to godly people, not angels (Gal. 3:26).

The view that the "sons of God" are kings or aristocrats is supported by the fact that the common Hebrew word for God is sometimes applied to persons who have great social power (Ps. 82:6-7; John 10:34-35). Advocates of this position say that the "daughters of men" were people of lower social status. Thus the passage is thought to indicate possible abuse of lower class women by licentious men of privilege. Interpreters who take this view do not necessarily connect the Nephilim with these marriages.

The third position is the most popular view among evangelical Christians. It assumes that the "sons of God" were descendants of godly Seth, while the "daughters of men" were descendants of ungodly Cain. Assuming the descendants of both men followed the moral examples set by their respective forefathers, the union of these two spiritually incompatible lines was contradictory to God's will (2 Cor. 6:14) and resulted in the total corruption of humanity, represented by the Nephilim.

6:3 The meaning of this verse is one of the most disputed in the Bible: Is it about God limiting the human life span, or about God setting a time for the universal flood? The reference to spirit could refer to the animating force present in living beings or to the Holy Spirit. Closely related to this issue is the appropriate understanding of the phrase strive with. The Hebrew word could also mean "remain in." Complicating the issue still further is the Hebrew word basar, which is normally translated flesh (KJV) but which can be taken figuratively to refer to that which is corrupt.

6:4 Two major questions arise in this verse: who are the giants and what if anything is their connection to the sons of God and the daughters of men? The word "giants" comes from the Hebrew word nephilim, which means "fallen ones," a phrase that could mean morally or physically degraded individuals, or possibly angels who fell from heaven (Isa. 14:12).

It is impossible that these are the same race as the "giants" in Num. 13:33, since none would have survived the flood (Gen. 7:22-23) and thus could not have lived during the postflood events narrated in Numbers. Plus the Nephilim are never mentioned as one of the groups to be wiped out by the Israelites when they entered Canaan. Their mention in Numbers 13 probably came from the lips of a fear-crazed spy who misinterpreted what he had seen in Canaan.

Were these giants products of the marriages between the sons of God and the daughters of mankind [v. 2]? Possibly, but in the Hebrew text there is no explicit connection

Noah Finds Grace with God

Building the Ark

<sup>14</sup> ¶ Make thee an ark of go'-pher wood; rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with pitch.

<sup>15</sup> And this is the fashion which thou shalt make it of: The length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits.

<sup>16</sup> A window shalt thou make to the ark, and in a cubit shalt thou finish it above; and the door of the ark shalt thou set in the side

33:13-14; 53:2-3 <sup>k</sup>6:13 Jer. 51:13; Ezek. 7:2-3,6; Amos 8:2; 1 Pet. 4:7 <sup>l</sup>ver. 17 between them. Moreover, the fact that they were in the earth in those days, i.e., before and during the sinful unions, leads some to suggest that their origins are elsewhere. Whatever their ancestry, as mighty men and men of renown they played a significant role in prelood society.

6:5 God, who alone can observe both people's outward actions (Job 34:21) and their thoughts (1 Sam. 16:7), saw what was visible—that man's wickedness was widespread—and what was invisible—that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. The word translated "heart" reflects the ancient conception that this organ was the seat of the intellect, emotion, and will.

6:6 The word repented does not mean that God had sinned or that He must change His divine nature, but that He felt sorrow for how man's sin had changed the situation and that He would now change His course of action accordingly. For the first time in the Bible, the Lord regretted something that he had made, not because of something He had done wrong, but because of what humanity was doing wrong. Humanity's preoccupation with evil grieved him at his heart, much as Israel's sin would later grieve Him (Ps. 78:40-41; Isa. 63:10).

6:7 Humanity was created to obey, worship, and fellowship with God. However, the magnitude of people's sin had progressively increased from that of eating forbidden fruit (3:6), to murder (4:8), to polygamy and multiple murders (4:23), and finally to worldwide preoccupation with evil (6:6). God's patience had come to an end, and the curse pronounced against Adam would now be amplified in a single catastrophic act. Since humanity was the capstone of God's creation, the elimination of people would take away any need for the ecological support system that sustained them: therefore it was expedient to destroy the beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air as well. Even as Adam's sin had caused him to lose the garden of Eden and Cain's sin drove him from the soil, the sins of humanity would now cause them to lose the earth.

6:8 This contrast to the rest of humanity anticipates Noah's contrasting destiny. The word grace means undeserved blessing given by a powerful being to one who is less powerful. Noah did not earn his salvation, but his life did demonstrate that he possessed saving faith (Heb 11:7). A wordplay exists in Hebrew between the words "Noah" and "grace," as both contain the same two consonants but use them in reverse order: n-ch/ch-n.

6:9 The generations of Noah is the third of 11 toledoth sections in Genesis (2:4; 5:1; 10:1; 11:10,27; 25:12,19; 36:1,9; 37:2). In this context, perfect means that Noah's loyalty to God was undivided and that he possessed integrity. In contrast to his contemporaries, Noah was just and mature, but he was not sinless.

6:11-12 Within these two verses three different forms of the verb corrupt are used to describe what humanity had done to itself and to the world. The Hebrew word means "to bring to ruin, to destroy."

6:13 For the first time in the Bible—but by no means the last (18:17; Amos 3:7)—God is shown expressing to one person what His intentions were for others. Noah is thus established as a prophet, a role he would faithfully fulfill (2 Pet. 2:5). God was about to bring the end of all flesh because of human sin. But judgment would not be limited to people; God would also destroy . . . the earth. Sadly, one of the victims of human sin is the earth on which we live (Lev. 26:18-20; Isa. 24:4-7; Jer. 12:11; Hos. 4:1-3).

6:14 Because of God's grace (v. 8) and Noah's relationship with God (v. 9), Noah and his family would be saved in an ark, along with the land and air animals. The term "ark" is used only in the Noah account and the story of Moses' early childhood (Exod. 2:3); as used in the Bible it refers to a watertight vessel used to preserve human life from impending disaster. Gopher is the transliteration of a Hebrew word whose meaning is unknown; gopher wood may be pine or cypress.

6:15 Noah was to make the ark rectangular and barge-like in shape, six times longer than it was wide, and ten times longer than it was high. These ratios have been used to produce seaworthy craft for centuries. In the Hebrew text the measurements are expressed as cubits, a cubit being the length from a person's elbow to the end of the fully extended middle finger—about 18 inches. The 450-foot length made the ark the largest ship known to be constructed in ancient times.

6:16 The word translated window (Hb tsohar) occurs only thereof; with lower, second, and third stories shalt thou make it.

17 <sup>a</sup>And, behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breath of life, from under heaven; and every thing that is in the earth shall die.

The Promise of a Covenant

18 But with thee will I establish my covenant; and <sup>b</sup>thou shalt come into the ark, thou, and thy sons, and thy wife, and thy sons' wives with thee.

19 And of every living thing of all flesh, <sup>c</sup>two of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark, to keep them alive with thee; they shall be male and female.

Entering the Ark

2 Of every <sup>i</sup>clean beast thou shalt take to thee by sevens, the male and his female: <sup>and</sup> of beasts that are not clean by two, the male and his female.

3 Of fowls also of the air by sevens, the male and the female; to keep seed alive upon the face of all the earth.

4 For yet seven days, and I will cause it to rain upon the earth <sup>k</sup>forty days and forty nights; and every living substance that I have here, and its meaning is unknown: other possible translations include "roof" or "hatch." If the term means "roof," then the text probably indicates that it was to extend 18 inches over the sides of the boat. If the term means "window," then it refers to an 18-inch high gap separating the four sides of the boat from its roof (cp. 8:6).

6:17 Only after He commanded Noah to make the ark did God tell him why it was to be built: God would bring a flood—a term used only in connection with the massive, all-destroying flood in Noah's day. Every thing that is in the earth shall die. The biblical language here and elsewhere in Genesis 6-8 most naturally indicates that Noah's flood covered the entire globe. The apostle Peter seems to affirm this (2 Pet. 2:5; 3:6). That the flood was global has been the dominant Christian understanding throughout history and remains so today. Defenders of this view offer models to explain the flood's impact on the geological column. They also tackle questions such as how much water was required to flood the entire globe. If geography today reflects pre-flood geography, scientists estimate that Earth would have needed four times the current quantity of water for the flood to cover the highest mountains (Gen. 7:19-20). In this light some defenders of a global flood have suggested that pre-flood geography differed from today's geography. Specifically, they suggest that Earth's landscape was flatter in the pre-flood era, thus requiring less water to flood, and that the violent flood created many of today's geographical and geological features. Others take a different approach, suggesting that pre- and postflood geography is largely the same, that the flood did indeed require a greater quantity of water than is now present on Earth, and that by an unknown mechanism Earth's quantity of water has greatly diminished after the flood.

6:18 The term covenant refers to a binding, formal agreement between two parties—a sort of treaty, pact, or contract.

6:19 God's preservation of Noah meant that the ecological support network of animals would still be needed. One male and one female of all vulnerable species were to be preserved.

6:20 Noah would not have to go on safaris to collect the various animals. They would come unto him so he could keep them alive. On at least three other occasions in the Bible God directed animals to come to people (Exod. 16:13; Num. 11:31; 1 Kings 17:2-6).

6:22 As other heroic men of the Bible would do in later times—Moses and Aaron (Exod. 7:6), Aaron's sons (Lev. 8:36), Joshua (Josh. 11:9), Gideon (Judg. 6:27), Samuel (1 Sam. 16:4), David (2 Sam. 5:25), and Elijah (1 Kings 17:5)—Noah did all that God commanded him. An undetermined amount of time passed between the previous verses in this chapter and this verse. Certainly the construction of the ark would have been a lengthy endeavor.

7:1 Following the ark's completion, the LORD gave Noah the order to begin the complex process of boarding the craft. Because of Noah's righteous walk with God he and his house would be saved. The concept of sparing many because of the righteousness of a few occurs elsewhere in the Bible (18:24-32).

7:2-3 While one male and one female of every species of air and land animal were to be taken aboard the ark, of every clean beast—both those of the land and the fowls also of the air—Noah was to have seven pairs of males and females onboard. The concept of clean animals is explained elsewhere in the Torah (Lev. 11:1-46); essentially, these were animals that were fit for human consumption and could be offered as sacrifices to God. On the meaning of all the earth, see note at 6:17.

7:4 The advance warning God gives Noah here about the onset of rain was necessary, for it almost certainly would have taken seven days to finish boarding the ark. Loading, securing, and tending to the dietary needs of all the wild animals onboard the three-story barge-like structure was a complicated and dangerous task.

Here rain was the mechanism for the deadly act of judgment that would destroy every living substance. Elsewhere in the OT God caused burning sulfur (19:24) and hailstones (Exod. 9:18, 23) to "rain" from the sky as a mechanism of judgment against sinners. The rains would continue unabated for forty days and forty nights. The number 40 played a significant role throughout the OT: Isaac and Esau were 40 when they married (25:20; 26:34), Moses was on made will I destroy from off the face of the earth.

5 <sup>a</sup>And No'-ah did according unto all that the LORD commanded him.

6 And No'-ah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters was upon the earth.

7 ¶ <sup>b</sup>And No'-ah went in, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him, into the ark, because of the waters of the flood.

8 Of clean beasts, and of beasts that are not clean, and of fowls, and of every thing that creepeth upon the earth,

9 There went in two and two unto No'-ah into the ark, the male and the female, as God had commanded No'-ah.

The Flood

11 ¶ In the six hundredth year of No'-ah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, the same day were all 'the fountains of the great deep broken up, and <sup>d</sup>the windows of heaven were opened.

12 <sup>e</sup>And the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights.

13 In the selfsame day 'entered No'-ah, and Shem, and Ham, and Ja'-pheth, the sons of No'-ah, and No'-ah's wife, and the three wives of his sons with them, into the ark;

14 <sup>g</sup>They, and every beast after his kind, and all the cattle after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind, and every fowl after his kind, every bird of every sort.

Mount Sinai 40 days and nights receiving the law from God (Exod. 24:18; 34:28; Deut. 9:11,18,25), Israel spent 40 years in the wilderness following their disobedience (Num. 32:13), the Philistines oppressed Israel for 40 years (Judg. 13:1), and several kings and judges ruled over Israel for 40 years (Othniel, Judg. 3:11; Deborah, Judg. 5:31; Gideon, Judg. 8:28; Eli, 1 Sam. 4:8; David, 2 Sam. 5:4; Solomon, 1 Kings 11:42; Joash, 2 Kings 12:1; Saul, Acts 13:21).

7:6 Noah's age at the onset of the flood—six hundred years—will be used to indicate the duration of the flood (8:13). No human being after Noah lived to this age (see note at 6:3). On the scope of the flood, see note at 6:17.

7:10 After seven days, exactly when God said it would occur, the waters of the flood began.

7:11 Water came from two different sources—one below and one above. Exactly what is meant by all the fountains of the great deep is unknown; the phrase appears to refer to a massive outflow of pressurized water from underground sources that broke forth out of the ground with devastating effect. No known phenomenon in nature today corresponds to this description.

7:12 Exactly as God had indicated (v. 4), the rain fell 40 days and 40 nights. God's word to Noah is once again shown to be trustworthy.

7:13-15 The selfsame day that Noah completed the task of loading the ark—that is, the seventh day (v. 10) after God's command was given—Noah and his family entered . . . the ark.

A reconstruction of the ark Noah built. The dimensions of the ark made it eminently seaworthy. The vessel in the Epic of Gilgamesh, an account of a flood that has some parallels to Noah's, is a cube. Such a vessel would have rolled over at the slightest disturbance.

15 And they <sup>a</sup>went in unto No'-ah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life.

16 And they that went in, went in male and female of all flesh, <sup>b</sup>as God had commanded him: and the LORD shut him in.

17 <sup>c</sup>And the flood was forty days upon the earth; and the waters increased, and bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth.

19 And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth; <sup>e</sup>and all the high hills, that were under the whole heaven, were covered.

20 Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail; and the mountains were covered.

21 <sup>f</sup>And all flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every man:

22 All in <sup>g</sup>whose nostrils was the breath of life, of all that was in the dry land, died.

23 And every living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth: and <sup>h</sup>No'-ah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark.

The Waters Recede

8 And God <sup>j</sup>remembered No'-ah, and every living thing, and all the cattle that was with him in the ark: <sup>k</sup>and God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters asswaged;

2 <sup>l</sup>The fountains also of the deep and the windows of heaven were stopped, and <sup>m</sup>the rain from heaven was restrained;

3 And the waters returned from off the earth continually: and after the end <sup>n</sup>of the hundred and fifty days the waters were abated.

The Ark Rests on Ararat

4 And the ark rested in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, upon the mountains of Ar'-a-rat.

5 And the waters decreased continually until the tenth month: in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, were the tops of the mountains seen.

A Raven and a Dove Sent Forth

6 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of forty days, that No'-ah opened <sup>o</sup>the window of the ark which he had made:

7 And he sent forth a raven, which went forth to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth.

8 Also he sent forth a dove from him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground;

9 But the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth: then he put forth his hand, and

7:16 Shut him in—No details are given to explain how God performed the supernatural act of shutting Noah in. This divine act highlights the truth found elsewhere in the Bible: "Salvation is from the LORD" [Jon. 2:9].

7:19-20 Fifteen cubits would be about 22.5 feet. For more on the scope of Noah's flood, see note at 6:17.

7:21-23 Through the use of expanded restatement the author brings the detailed account of the flood's destruction to a climax. The overpowering presentation of death is contrasted with Noah's preservation.

7:24 Though the text does not explicitly say so, the total of 150 days seems to include the 40 days of rain [see note at v. 12]. The Hebrew word translated as prevailed emphasizes the power of the waters.

8:1 Remembered does not suggest that God had ever forgotten about Noah; when used of God, "remember" suggests the initiation of a miraculous, saving act of God. Other instances of God "remembering" as the first step in providing divine help for His people include His intervention in the lives of Lot [19:29], Rachel [30:22], and the Israelites in Egypt [Exod. 2:24]. Using language that reflects God's initial act of creating the universe [Gen. 1:2], God caused (Hb) ruach—"Spirit" or wind—to pass over the waters of the earth. Immediately the water began to subside.

8:2 Following the 150 days of ever-surging waters, a turn-about occurred: all the sources of water (from above and below) stopped and the water began to subside. The initial downpour ended after 40 days and nights [7:12], so presumably the rain that is said to have been restrained in the present verse was only sporadic showers.

8:3 Just as the flood had increased upon the earth for 150 days, so it returned from off the earth continually for 150 days, until the levels had abated significantly.

8:4 Exactly five months after the flood had begun [7:11], the ark rested . . . upon the mountains of Ararat—a region in modern Turkey or Armenia.

8:6 This is the only use of this Hebrew word hallon for a window in the ark (cp. 6:16). Noah checked the earth's readiness to receive the ark's cargo of people and animals.

8:7 Rabbis have suggested that Noah first sent forth a raven, a ritually unclean bird, because it was expendable. The fact that it went forth to and fro from the ark means that it could find no suitable habitat.

8:8 Perhaps simultaneous with the release of the raven or soon thereafter, Noah sent forth a dove. Since the dove ate seeds and insects, it would provide a useful indication of whether the waters were abated from off the face of the ground.

took her, and pulled her in unto him into the ark.

10 And he stayed yet other seven days; and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark;

11 And the dove came in to him in the evening; and, lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf plucked off: so No'-ah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

12 And he stayed yet other seven days; and sent forth the dove; which returned not again unto him any more.

13 ¶ And it came to pass in the six hundredth and first year, in the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth: and No'-ah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and, behold, the face of the ground was dry.

14 And in the second month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month, was the earth dried.

Leaving the Ark

15 ¶ And God spake unto No'-ah, saying,

16 Go forth of the ark, <sup>a</sup>thou, and thy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons' wives with thee.

17 Bring forth with thee <sup>b</sup>every living thing that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth; that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and <sup>c</sup>be fruitful, and multiply upon the earth.

Noah's Sacrifice and God's Promise

20 ¶ And No'-ah builded an altar unto the LORD; and took of <sup>d</sup>every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt offerings on the altar.

21 And the LORD smelled <sup>e</sup>a sweet savour; and the LORD said in his heart, I will not again <sup>f</sup>curse the ground any more for man's sake; for the <sup>g</sup>imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; <sup>h</sup>neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done.

22 <sup>i</sup>While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and <sup>j</sup>day and night shall not cease.

God Blesses Noah

9 And God blessed No'-ah and his sons, and said unto them, <sup>k</sup>Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth.

2 <sup>l</sup>And the fear of you and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth, and upon all the

8:9 Though the ark was now resting on Ararat (v. 4) and mountaintops were visible (v. 5), the waters had not yet receded enough for the dove to find a place to rest her feet.

8:10-11 When the dove returned to Noah from its second foray with an olive leaf, this confirmed that the lower elevations (where olive trees grow) were now above water. Inspired by this passage, the image of a dove with an olive branch in its mouth has become a universal symbol of peace.

8:12 When Noah sent forth the dove a third time and it returned not, it was clear that life-sustaining conditions now existed at the earth's more temperate, lower elevations.

8:13-14 On Noah's six hundred and first birthday he removed the covering of the ark and confirmed what the dove had indicated—that the plains beneath the mountain range were dry. Some 57 days (one 29.5-day cycle of the moon plus 27 days) later, the earth dried.

8:15-16 Perhaps this is the first time that God had spoken to Noah since before the flood; during the entire year of the catastrophic flood there is no record that God communicated directly with the patriarch or his family. What faith Noah demonstrated during that terrifying time in the ark's dark interior!

8:20 Noah's first act following his departure from the ark was to worship God by giving a burnt offering. Since every clean beast and fowl—that is, one of every mammal that chewed the cud and possessed split hoofs, as well as one of every kind of bird that did not eat carrion—was offered, it must have been an impressive sacrifice.

8:21 Using anthropomorphic language—words that describe God's actions in human terms—the text notes that the LORD smelled a sweet savour. The phrase means that God accepted Noah's sacrifice. Elsewhere in the Torah, God's refusal to smell a sacrifice meant His rejection of the offering (Lev. 26:31). Acceptable offerings in other parts of the Bible are said to have a sweet savour (Exod. 29:25; Lev. 1:9; 2:2; 3:16; Num. 18:17). Following Noah's sacrifice the Lord made a solemn promise never again to curse the ground as He had done following Adam's sin (Gen. 3:17; 5:29). Almost with a sense of resignation, God noted that man's heart was evil from his youth (Ps. 14:1; Rom. 3:9,23). Yet in spite of humanity's sinful nature, God's grace and love would prevail: He would not again destroy all life as He had done in Noah's day.

8:22 The terrifying chaos of the flood would give way to the predictable, comforting rhythms of life—the harvest, the seasons, day and night—for as long as the earth exists.

9:1-2 This blessing fortifies the parallels between Noah and Adam (1:28), as both blessings began with the command to be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth. However, in Noah's day the blessing is altered. Mankind is still to take dominion over creation (1:28), but due to the presence of sin, the harmony that existed in the garden of Eden had forever ended; now animals are filled with the fear and dread fishes of the sea; into your hand are they delivered.

3 <sup>a</sup>Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you; even as the <sup>b</sup>green herb have I given you <sup>c</sup>all things.

4 <sup>d</sup>But flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat.

5 And surely your blood of your lives will I require; <sup>e</sup>at the hand of every beast will I require it, and <sup>f</sup>at the hand of man; at the hand of every <sup>g</sup>man's brother will I require the life of man.

6 <sup>h</sup>Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: <sup>i</sup>for in the image of God made he man.

7 And you, <sup>j</sup>be ye fruitful, and multiply; bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein.

God's Covenant with Noah

8 ¶ And God spake unto No'-ah, and to his sons with him, saying,

9 And I, <sup>k</sup>behold, I establish <sup>l</sup>my covenant with you, and with your seed after you;

10 <sup>m</sup>And with every living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the cattle, and of every beast of the earth with you; from all that go out of the ark, to every beast of the earth.

The Rainbow

12 And God said, <sup>v</sup>This is the token of the covenant which I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations:

13 I do set <sup>w</sup>my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.

14 And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud:

15 And <sup>x</sup>I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

16 And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember <sup>y</sup>the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth.

17 And God said unto No'-ah, This is the token of the covenant, which I have established between me and all flesh that is upon the earth.

18 ¶ And the sons of No'-ah, that went forth of the ark, were Shem, <sup>z</sup>and Ham, and Ja'-pheth: and Ham is the father of Ca'-naan.

19 <sup>aa</sup>These are the three sons of No'-ah: <sup>ab</sup>and of them was the whole earth overspread.

of humans. Terrorized animals can be dangerous; even so, God delivered the animals into people's hand, ensuring that humans would prevail over the animal kingdom.

9:3 The original dietary regulations given to Adam and Eve (1:29) were now expanded. Animal proteins would join green herb within the human diet. The phrase every moving thing referring to animal food sources can be understood to refer to smaller animals on land or sea, but it is usually understood here to mean every living creature. Israelites would later be limited to eating only clean animals (Lev. 11).

9:4 Though meat would be permissible as food, blood would not. God required Noah and his offspring to drain the life-blood from any animal before eating it. This guideline would be expanded and clarified in Israel's Sinai law code (Lev. 7:26-27; 17:10-14; 19:26; Deut. 12:16,24; 15:23). To avoid offending Jewish Christians, first-century Christian Gentiles were also encouraged not to eat blood (Acts 15:20,29).

9:5-6 Because in the image of God made he man, the taking of a human life either by an animal or by another person was not treated like the death of an animal. Every beast or man who killed another human being, his own blood would be shed by man as a just punishment. This verse establishes that unauthorized taking of a human life is a capital offense, and it implicitly authorizes properly credentialed authorities to execute murderers. Other verses in the law of Moses reinforced this concept (Exod. 20:13; 21:23; Deut. 19:21). No such law exists for the killing of animals; the Bible consistently teaches that human beings are of superior worth to animals.

9:7 God's blessing of humanity in Noah's day begins (v. 2) and ends with the command to be fruitful, and multiply. This repetition underscores the sacredness and desirability of human reproduction within God's plan.

9:8-11 These verses are the formal conclusion of the covenant first mentioned in 6:18. The initial expression of the covenant unconditionally offered safety in the ark to Noah's family and many classes of animals. In the style of a royal grant or unilateral agreement, this portion of the Noachic covenant unconditionally promises that there will never again be a flood of the same destructive scale.

9:12-17 Accompanying the covenant was a visible token of the agreement between God and the earth that would continue for perpetual generations: God's bow in the cloud represented His promise that He would never again send a flood to destroy all flesh. From this point forward the rainbow would have profound significance as an affirmation of God's grace and peace. Elsewhere in the Bible the rainbow is associated with the presence of God or His angelic representative (Ezek. 1:28; Rev. 4:3; 10:1). This covenant is one of three in the Bible that were accompanied by a sign; the other signs were circumcision (Gen. 17:11) and the Sabbath (Exod. 31:16-17).

9:18-19 Beginning with repeated material (5:32; 6:10), the writer launches into a new narrative designed to prepare readers for God's judgment on the nation of Canaan. The

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW

It seems fitting that the first book of the New Testament—the Gospel of Matthew—begins with these words: “The book of the generation of Jesus Christ.” This Gospel was written from a strong Jewish perspective to show that Jesus truly is the Messiah promised in the Old Testament.

“And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him. . . . And was there until the death of Herod: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son.” (2:13,15).

CIRCUMSTANCES OF WRITING

Author: The author did not identify himself in the text. However, the title that ascribes this Gospel to Matthew appears in the earliest manuscripts and is possibly original. Titles became necessary to distinguish one Gospel from another when the four Gospels began to circulate as a single collection. Many early church fathers (Papias, Irenaeus, Pantaenus, and Origen) acknowledged Matthew as the author. Papias also contended that Matthew first wrote in Hebrew, implying that this Gospel was later translated into Greek.

Many modern scholars dispute these traditional claims. For instance, against Papias they argue that this Gospel was not originally written in Hebrew since the Greek of Matthew does not appear to be translation Greek. They further argue that if the early church, following Papias's opinion, was wrong about the original language, they were likely incorrect about the author as well. However, the excellent Greek of Matthew could have been produced by a skilled translator of an original Hebrew text. Furthermore, there are many hints of Hebraic influence in this Gospel (see notes at 1:17, 1:21, and 2:22-23). Finally, since Hebrew quickly ceased to be the dominant language of early Christians as the church expanded into Gentile territories, requiring the Gospel to circulate in a Greek translation, the absence of ancient Hebrew texts of Matthew is not surprising. Even if Papias was wrong about the original language of the Gospel of Matthew, this does not imply that he and other early church leaders were wrong to identify Matthew as the author of this Gospel. In fact the early church unanimously affirmed that the Gospel of Matthew was authored by the apostle Matthew. It would require impressive evidence to overturn this early consensus.

Clues from the Gospel itself support its ascription to Matthew. First, both Mark 2:14 and Luke 5:27 identify the tax collector whom Jesus called to be His disciple as "Levi." This Gospel, however, identifies Levi as "Matthew." Some believe Jesus gave the name "Matthew" (Hebrew for "Gift of God") to Levi when He summoned him to be a disciple, but it was not uncommon for Jews at the time to have two names (like Saul and Paul). The use of "Matthew" in this Gospel may be Matthew's personal touch, a self-reference that gives us a clue about authorship.

Background: Determining the date of composition of Matthew's Gospel depends largely on the relationship of the Gospels to one another. Most scholars believe that Matthew utilized Mark's Gospel in writing his own gospel. If this is correct, Matthew's Gospel must postdate Mark's. However, the date of Mark's Gospel is also shrouded in mystery. Irenaeus (ca A.D. 180) seems to claim that Mark wrote his Gospel after Peter's death in the mid-60s. However, Clement of Alexandria, who wrote only 20 years after Irenaeus, claimed that Mark wrote his Gospel while Peter was still alive. Given the ambiguity of the historical evidence, a decision must be based on other factors.

The date of composition for Mark is best inferred from the date of Luke and Acts. The abrupt ending of Acts which left Paul under house arrest in Rome implies that Acts was written before Paul's release. Since one of the major themes of Acts is the legality of Christianity in the Roman Empire, one would have expected Luke to mention Paul's release by the emperor if it had already occurred. This evidence dates Acts to the early 60s. Luke and Acts were two volumes of a single work, as the prologues to these books demonstrate. Luke was written before Acts. Given the amount of research that Luke invested in the book and the travel that eyewitness interviews probably required, a date in the late 50s is reasonable. If Luke used Mark in writing his own Gospel, as seems likely, by implication Mark was written some time before the late 50s, perhaps the early to mid-50s. Thus, despite Matthew's dependence on Mark, Matthew may have been written any time beginning in the mid-50s once Mark was completed. The earliest historical evidence is consistent with this opinion, since Irenaeus (ca A.D. 180) claimed that Matthew wrote his Gospel while Peter and Paul were preaching in Rome (early 60s).

MESSAGE AND PURPOSE

Matthew probably wrote his Gospel in order to preserve written eyewitness testimony about the ministry of Jesus. Matthew's Gospel emphasizes certain theological truths. First, Jesus is the Messiah, the long-awaited King of God's people. Second, Jesus is the new Abraham, the founder of a new spiritual Israel comprising all people who choose to follow Him. This new Israel will consist of both Jews and Gentiles. Third, Jesus is the new Moses, the deliverer and instructor of God's people. Fourth, Jesus is the Immanuel, the virgin-born Son of God who fulfills the promises of the OT.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE BIBLE

As the first book in the NT, the Gospel of Matthew serves as a gateway between the two testaments. Of the NT books, and certainly of the four Gospels, Matthew has the strongest connections to the OT. Matthew gave us God's entire plan from Genesis to Revelation. Matthew looked back and referred to Hebrew prophecies about 60 times ("was fulfilled" and "that it might be fulfilled"). He also looked forward by dealing not only with Messiah's coming and His ministry, but also His future plan for His church and kingdom.

STRUCTURE

Matthew divided his Gospel into three major sections. He introduced new major sections with the words "from that time" (4:17; 16:21). These transitional statements divide the Gospel into the introduction (1:1–4:16), body (4:17–16:20), and conclusion (16:21–28:20). Matthew also divided his Gospel into five major blocks of teaching, each of which concludes with a summary statement (8:1; 11:1; 13:53; 19:1; 26:1). Some scholars believe these five major discourses were meant to correspond to the five books of Moses and to confirm Jesus' identity as the new Moses.

1:1 The title of this genealogy introduces several important themes in Matthew. Jesus is identified as the Christ, the Messiah, the King anointed by God to rule over His people. This is reiterated by identifying Jesus as son of David (v. 20; 2:2; 9:27; 12:3,23; 15:22; 20:30-31; 21:9,15). OT prophecies like 2 Sam. 7:16 and Isa. 9:2-7 foretold that the Messiah (the "anointed one") would be a descendant of King David. Jesus' Davidic lineage shows that He meets this qualification. Though the genealogy is otherwise arranged in chronological order, Matthew shifted "son of David" ahead of son of Abraham to lay emphasis on the royal title.

The title "son of Abraham" implies that just as Abraham was the father of national Israel, Jesus will be the founder of a new spiritual Israel. The phrase the book of the generation of Jesus is unusual. OT genealogies are consistently named after the earliest ancestor in the lineage because the Jews considered that person to be most significant since everyone else derived from them. That Matthew names his genealogy after Jesus, the final descendant in the lineage, implies that Jesus is more important than anyone who preceded Him.

1:2-6 Some of the names are spelled differently here than they are in the OT, such as Judas (Judah). This is because the NT has the Greek form of the Hebrew names. Matthew mentioned four women in his genealogy besides Mary, all of them Gentiles. Tamar was a Canaanite. Rachab was from Jericho. Ruth was a Moabitess. The wife of Urias, Bathsheba, was probably a Hittite. The mention of these women signals God's intention to include Gentiles and women in His redemptive plan. Several kings are named also, but only David is explicitly given the title king. This highlights that the Son of David (Jesus) will likewise be a kingly figure.

1:7-16 Matthew's genealogy agrees with the genealogies of 1 Chron. 1-3 and Luke 3:23-38 from the generation of Abraham down to David. After David, Matthew's genealogy agrees with that of 1 Chronicles except for a few intentional gaps, but departs significantly from Luke's. From this, some interpreters argue that one or both of the NT genealogies is inaccurate. However, Jews in David's line carefully preserved their genealogies because they knew from the OT prophecies that one of their descendants would be the Messiah. David's descendants also had the privilege of providing firewood for the altar in Jerusalem (m. Ta'an. 4:5). Naturally, they kept careful records to demonstrate their Davidic descent and preserve their privileges. Evidence in Josephus (Life 1) and rabbinic texts suggests that genealogical archives were kept in public registers.

There are several ways in which the genealogies of Matthew and Luke may be harmonized. First, one may preserve the genealogy of Jesus through Mary and the other through Joseph. Second, the custom of levirate marriage resulted in a child having different biological and legal fathers. Perhaps one genealogy follows the biological line while the other follows the legal. Third, one genealogy may trace David's legal descendants who would have reigned if the Davidic kingdom had continued while the other lists descendants in Joseph's specific line. A combination of these approaches is also possible.

In Greek, the pronoun whom is feminine. Thus, although the rest of the genealogy focuses on fathers and only rarely mentions mothers, Matthew identified a human mother but not a human father of Jesus, thus affirming Jesus' virginal conception.

1:17 Matthew's arrangement of Jesus' genealogy into three sets of fourteen generations is probably an example of gematria, a system that assigns numerical value to letters of the alphabet (e.g. A = 1, B = 2, etc.) in order to communicate a subtle message. In Hebrew, the numerical value of the letters composing the name "David" is 14.

1:18 The words of Jesus Christ are in an emphatic position

The Birth of Christ

18 ¶ Now the <sup>a</sup>birth of Je'-sus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Ma'-ry was espoused to Jo'-seph, before they came together, she was found with child <sup>b</sup>of the Ho'-ly Ghost.

19 Then Jo'-seph her husband, being a just man, and not willing <sup>c</sup>to make her a publick example, was minded to put her away privily.

20 But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Jo'-seph, thou son of Da'-vid, fear not to take unto thee Ma'-ry thy wife: <sup>d</sup>for that which is conceived in her is of the Ho'-ly Ghost.

21 <sup>e</sup>And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JE'-SUS: for <sup>f</sup>he shall save his people from their sins.

22 Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying,

24 Then Jo'-seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife:

25 And knew her not till she had brought forth <sup>h</sup>her firstborn son: and he called his name JE'-SUS.

The Magis' Visit

2 Now when <sup>i</sup>Je'-sus was born in Beth'-lehem of Ju-dæ'-a in the days of Her'-od the king, behold, there came wise men <sup>j</sup>from the east to Je-ru'-sa-lem,

2 Saying, <sup>k</sup>Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen <sup>l</sup>his star in the east, and are come to worship him.

3 When Her'-od the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Je-ru'-sa-lem with him.

in the Greek text, implying that the circumstances of Jesus' birth differed from those of everyone else in the genealogy. Although several of those people were conceived by miracles, they all had a human father. Only Jesus was born of a virgin. Before they came together means that Joseph and Mary had not yet had intercourse. Joseph thus assumed that Mary had been unfaithful. With child of the Holy Ghost means that Mary's pregnancy was a miracle performed by the Spirit, not that God assumed material form and physically impregnated her. This makes Jesus' conception dramatically different from Greek myths that speak of children born to gods who lay with women.

1:19 Joseph did not want to humiliate Mary publicly because he was a just man. True righteousness is characterized by compassion and mercy, an important theme for Matthew (5:6-7,21-26,38-48).

1:20 God spoke to Joseph through dreams, just as He did to his OT namesake (Gen. 37:1-11). The title son of David reminded Joseph of his royal lineage and prepared him for the announcement of the Messiah's birth. On conceived . . . of the Holy Ghost, see note at verse 18.

1:21 JESUS is the Greek form of the Hebrew name Joshua, which means "Jehovah saves." Jesus' name revealed His purpose: He would rescue sinners from the punishment they deserve. This salvation would be experienced by his people—those who follow Jesus.

1:22 The Lord was the ultimate author of the messages spoken and written by the prophets. The grammar that Matthew uses to introduce the quote suggests that the angel quoted this verse to Joseph during his announcement. Some interpreters argue that Matthew mishandled Isaiah 7:14, but he seems to have handled it just as the angel did, which means his usage is backed by angelic authority.

1:23 The name Emmanuel (God with us) implies Jesus' deity. Mary's virgin-born Son would be God Himself living among His people. The "Immanuel" of Isa. 7:14 is to be identified with the person described in Isa. 9:2-7 and 11:1-9.

1:24-25 These verses emphasize Joseph's absolute obedience to the angel's instructions, a prevalent theme in these early chapters (2:13-15,19-21). Joseph is a model of the obedience that should characterize Jesus' disciples (5:19-20). Knew her not confirms again that Jesus was the product of a virginal conception.

2:1 The wise men were magi. Eastern magi mixed Zoroastrianism with astrology and black magic. They are described in Dan. 2:2,4-5,10, where they are associated with diviner-priests, mediums, and sorcerers. The term "magus" [sg of "magi"] appears only once in the NT. It describes Elymas, whom Paul portrayed as "full of all subtilty and all mischief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness" (Acts 13:6-10). The magus of whom Paul spoke would have held beliefs that were similar to those of the wise men. Thus, the summons of the magi to visit Jesus demonstrates God's intention to save Gentiles from their futile religions. As an adult, Jesus cast out demons and broke Satan's grip on beleaguered people. Here we see that even in His infancy, Christ plundered Satan's kingdom and set captives free. The east may refer to Babylonia or Persia.

2:2 The question posed by the wise men was an unintentional challenge to Herod's reign. Jesus was born King in the sense that He was from David's line and thus King by birthright. Herod, however, was neither a full Jew nor a descendant of David and thus was not genuinely qualified to reign as king. The word translated star can indicate many different astronomical phenomena, including comets, meteors, or planetary conjunctions. Matthew later (2:9) described the star as moving through the sky in order to point the magi to Jesus' precise location. This indicates that it was no ordinary star. In the east probably means "at its rising," indicating that the star mysteriously appeared in the eastern sky to signal the Messiah's birth. The interest of the magi in astrology, a practice condemned in the Bible (Isa. 47:13-15), probably first directed their attention to the Messiah's star. In another profound display of grace, God condescended to use the magi's pagan superstitions to draw them to Jesus.

2:3 Herod was troubled by reports of the birth of a legitimate claimant to his throne. The people of Jerusalem were equally disturbed because they feared Herod's paranoid

4 And when he had gathered all <sup>a</sup>the chief priests and <sup>b</sup>scribes of the people together, <sup>c</sup>he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

5 And they said unto him, In Beth'-le-hem of Ju-dæ'-a: for thus it is written by the prophet,

6 <sup>d</sup>And thou Beth'-le-hem, in the land of Ju'-da, art not the least among the princes of Ju'-da: for out of thee shall come a Governor, <sup>e</sup>that shall rule my people Is'-ra-el.

7 Then Her'-od, when he had privily called the wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

8 And he sent them to Beth'-le-hem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

9 When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

10 When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

11 ¶ And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Ma'-ry his mother, and fell down, and worshipped

12 And being warned of God <sup>g</sup>in a dream that they should not return to Her'-od, they departed into their own country another way.

The Flight to Egypt

13 And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Jo'-seph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into E'-gypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Her'-od will seek the young child to destroy him.

14 When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into E'-gypt:

15 And was there until the death of Her'-od: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, <sup>h</sup>Out of E'-gypt have I called my son.

16 ¶ Then Her'-od, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Beth'-le-hem, and in all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, and delusional rages. In the past he had killed even his favorite wife and sons in order to protect his rule.

2:4 Herod summoned experts to learn where the OT said the Messiah would be born. To this point the star had guided the wise men near to Jesus, but now the witness of the Scriptures was necessary before God caused the star to reappear and pinpoint the Messiah's exact location. Thus the value of biblical revelation was upheld even as new revelations unfolded.

2:5-6 The chief priests and scribes (v. 3) knew Scripture well enough to identify Bethlehem as the Messiah's birthplace [Mic. 5:2; John 7:42]; nevertheless, they later opposed His teachings. Knowledge of Scripture does not guarantee that your heart is right with God. The priestly opposition to Jesus is foreshadowed here by the fact that they made no effort to go visit Him even as the magi undertook the last leg of a long journey to do so. Micah 5:2 foretold that Bethlehem would be the birthplace of a king who would rule . . . Israel. Matthew's translation says that the Messiah will literally "shepherd" Israel. Matthew likely chose this word to reflect Micah's use of "feed" in 5:4 and thus show that the entirety of Mic. 5 applies to Jesus. This indicates that Jesus is eternal since Micah says His "goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting." Micah also said He will "be great unto the ends of the earth."

2:7-8 Herod questioned the magi about the exact time of the star's appearance under the assumption that the star first appeared at the time of the child's birth. On the basis of this date, he ordered the execution of all male children in Bethlehem two years of age and under (2:16). This implies that the magi's journey was lengthy and involved great sacrifice. Herod's pretended desire to worship the Messiah highlights his deceitfulness.

2:11 In contrast to the stable in which Jesus was born (Luke 2), Jesus' family now lived in a house. This shows that the magi visited Jesus after the visit of the shepherds described by Luke. The magi worshipped Jesus openly, as did many other people during His lifetime (8:2; 9:18; 14:33; 15:25; 20:20; 28:9,17). Jesus' reception of worship reinforces His identity as Immanuel, "God with us" (1:23).

2:13-14 The angel called Jesus the child rather than "your child" when speaking to Joseph because Joseph was not Jesus' biological father. Similarly, he described Mary as his mother rather than "your wife" because he wished to identify her in relation to the greater (Jesus) rather than the lesser (Joseph). Joseph promptly obeyed [see note at 1:24-25].

2:15 That what was spoken had to be fulfilled indicates that the Bible is inspired by God and authoritative over history. In its original context, the calling of the son out of Egypt in Hos. 11 is a reference to Israel's exodus from Egypt, not the young Messiah's trip back home. Matthew understood this, but under the Spirit's direction he recognized Jesus as the new Moses who will lead a new and climactic exodus. Just as Moses delivered his people from slavery to Pharaoh, Jesus will deliver people from slavery to Satan. Thus Matthew rightly regarded Hos. 11:1 and other portions of the OT as foreshadows of Jesus and events in His life.

2:16-17 Skeptics deny that Herod ever slaughtered the boys of Bethlehem since no extrabiblical source documents this horrific event. However, the murders are consistent with his documented dealings, such as his murdering his own family. The Jewish historian Josephus reported that Herod arranged for many Jewish nobles to be murdered upon his death in order to ensure that the land mourned his passing (Ant. 17:167-69). Herod's behavior is reminiscent of according to the time which he had diligently inquired of the wise men.

17 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by <sup>a</sup>Jer'-e-my the prophet, saying,

18 In Ra'-ma was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Ra'-chel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

The Return to Nazareth

19 ¶ But when Her'-od was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Jo'-seph in E'-gypt,

20 Saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and go into the land of Is'-rael: for they are dead which sought the young child's life.

21 And he arose, and took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Is'-ra-el.

23 And he came and dwelt in a city called <sup>e</sup>Naz'-a-reth: that it might be fulfilled <sup>d</sup>which was spoken by the prophets, He shall be called a Naz'-a-rene.

John the Baptist's Ministry

3 In those days came <sup>e</sup>John the Bap'-tist, preaching <sup>f</sup>in the wilderness of Ju-dæ'-a,

2 And saying, Repent ye: for <sup>g</sup>the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

3 For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet E-sa'-ias, saying, <sup>h</sup>The voice of one crying in the wilderness, <sup>i</sup>Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

4 And <sup>j</sup>the same John <sup>k</sup>had his raiment of Pharaoh's around the time of Moses' birth (Exod. 1:15-22). This and other striking similarities to Moses' birth narrative strengthen Matthew's presentation of Jesus as the new Moses whom God promised in Deut. 18:15-19. Ancient Jews thought of Moses as a deliverer (Acts 7:25,35). By highlighting parallels between Moses and Jesus, Matthew shows that Jesus was the promised Deliverer who would save His people from their sins [see notes at Matt. 1:7-16 and 2:20-21]. Herod killed all boys two years old and under because the star had appeared to the magi two years previously, presumably at the moment of Jesus' birth.

2:17-18 Once again Matthew introduces a quotation in a way that implies that the OT author (Jeremiah in this case) was used by God to proclaim His message. Matthew quotes Jer. 31:15 which originally expressed the lament of mothers who grieved over sons who were sent into exile. Matthew's application here implies that Israel was again in exile, estranged from God, and in need of redemption. Since Jer. 31 includes the weeping and then climaxes with the joyous promise that God would establish a new covenant with His people, one in which He would forgive their sins and write His law on their hearts, Matthew likely intends to call this to mind and apply it to the Bethlehem massacre and the coming of Jesus. Just as the weeping of mothers preceded the promise of the new covenant in Jer. 31, so now the weeping of mothers preceded the establishment of the new covenant through Jesus [see note at 26:28].

2:19 Since Herod died in 4 B.C., and since Jesus was born roughly two years before Herod ordered the massacre of the Bethlehem boys, it seems that Jesus was born in 5 or 6 B.C. It also seems likely that the shameless Bethlehem massacre was one of Herod's final acts—a fitting close to a life of infamous violence.

2:20 The angel's words are almost identical to the words Jehovah spoke to Moses from the burning bush (Exod. 4:19, LXX). This allusion to the Moses narrative again identifies Jesus as the new Moses [see notes at 2:15 and 2:16-17].

2:22-23 Archelaus, son of Herod the Great, inherited his father's violent traits. His rule over Judaea signaled that the holy family should settle elsewhere, and so Joseph led his family to resettle in the obscure Galilaean village of Nazareth, where Joseph and Mary had previously lived (Luke 1:26). Matthew states that the decision was a fulfillment of an OT prophecy that the Messiah shall be called a Nazarene. Rather than a specific OT text, Matthew was probably referring to an OT theme, the prophecies that describe the Messiah as a "branch." The term used for "branch" in Is 11:1 (netser) may be transliterated with the first three consonants (nzr) that compose the nouns "Nazareth" and "Nazarene." This messianic prophecy is closely connected to others (Isa. 4:2; Jer. 23:5; 33:15) that told of a righteous descendant of David whose wise and just rule would be empowered by the Spirit and who would bring salvation to Judah. Matthew thus saw Jesus' hometown as a subtle clue to His identity as the Messiah.

3:1 In those days means "during the time of Jesus' residence in Nazareth" rather than "during the reign of Archelaus." After all, Archelaus reigned from 4 B.C. to A.D. 6, too early for John the Baptist to have begun his ministry since he would have been under age 12. In OT usage, "in those days" often referred to a time of prophetic fulfillment (Isa. 10:20; Amos 9:11; Zeph. 1:15; Zech. 12:3-4). Matthew probably used the phrase in conjunction with his references to fulfilled prophecy to emphasize that God's promises were being fulfilled through Jesus and John the Baptist, herald and predecessor of the Messiah. The location of John's ministry is reminiscent of the ministry of the prophet Elijah (1 Kings 17:3; 19:3-18; 2 Kings 2:1-12), who many Jews believed would appear again to prepare the way for the Messiah (Matt. 17:10-13).

3:2 John's message focused on repentance and the coming kingdom of heaven. Jesus emphasized the same thing from the outset of His ministry [see note at 4:17]. The kingdom is defined as the rule that God exercises through the person, work, and teachings of Jesus. The call to repent means we must abandon sinful lifestyles and express sorrow for sins.

3:3 Matthew's application of Isa. 40:3 to John the Baptist tells us as much about Jesus as it does about John. After all, in its original context the prophecy spoke of one who prepared the way for the coming of Jehovah, God Himself. By using a text about the coming of Jehovah to describe the coming of Jesus, Matthew proclaimed that Jesus is divine.

3:4 John's raiment was similar to Elijah's (2 Kings 1:8), and his ministry and lifestyle paralleled Elijah's also, including his residence in the Judaeian wilderness, his austere camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins; and his meat was <sup>a</sup>locusts and <sup>b</sup>wild honey.

<sup>5</sup> Then went out to him Je-ru'-sa-lem, and all Ju-dæ'-a, and all the region round about Jor'-dan,

<sup>7</sup> ¶ But when he saw many of the Phar'-i-sees and Sad'-du-ceeds come to his baptism, he said unto them, <sup>e</sup>O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from <sup>f</sup>the wrath to come?

<sup>11</sup> ¶ I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: <sup>i</sup>he shall baptize you with the Ho'-ly Ghost, and with fire:

The Baptism of the Beloved Son

<sup>14</sup> But John forbad him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?

<sup>15</sup> And Je'-sus answering said unto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he suffered him.

diet, his call for Israel to repent, and his confrontation with an evil king and his wife. Jesus explained the significance of these parallels in Matt. 11:14; 17:12-13.

3:6 Although Jews required Gentiles to immerse themselves in water in order to convert from paganism to Judaism, John demanded that repentant Jews be baptized as well. This bold move implied that Jews did not belong to God merely by virtue of their descent from Abraham (see note at vv. 7-9). Like anyone else, ethnic Jews needed to repent in order to enter the coming kingdom. Unlike the repetitive ritual washings of other religious groups, John's baptism appears to have been a one-time event associated with a permanent repentance and a transformed life.

3:7-9 In Matt. 2:4 the chief priests and scribes identified the place of the Messiah's birth but made no effort to visit Him. Their attention was on worldly power instead. That negative portrayal is now followed by John's charge that the leading priests of the Jews were vipers (see 12:34; 23:33) fleeing from God's wrath. The coming kingdom would be accompanied by blessing for God's people and by punishment for the unrepentant. The Pharisees and Sadducees had no intention of confessing their sins because they presumed that descent from Abraham guaranteed that they would escape God's wrath. This belief was reflected in the Mishnah, which stated, "All Israel will have a share in the world to come." John's statement about raising up children unto Abraham from these stones involves a wordplay in Hebrew. The word child (ben) sounds similar to the word stone (eben). A stone has no intrinsic value, yet Almighty God can transform worthless rock into a person and include him in His covenant people if He so chooses (Isa. 51:1-2). Consequently, descent from Abraham gave the Jews no grounds for boasting. John's warning foreshadows the incorporation of believing Gentiles into the people of God, an important theme in Matthew's Gospel.

3:10 God will punish those who fail to produce "fruits meet for repentance" (v. 8). In the teachings of John and Jesus, fruit represents good works that result from a miraculous inner transformation (7:15-20; 12:33; 13:23). Later, the cursing of the fig tree and the parable of the wicked tenants illustrated the penalty (21:18-22, 33-43).

3:11 Removing the master's shoes was a task so menial that Hebrew slave owners could not require it of Hebrew slaves. John, however, saw himself as unworthy to perform for Jesus the very task that slaves were spared from performing. John expressed this deep humility because Jesus was mightier than he, and this greater power expressed itself through a new baptism that was vastly superior to John's. John's baptism was a public expression of repentance, but his baptism could not change a person's heart. Jesus, however, baptized the repentant with the Holy Ghost, making them holy through inner transformation. Matthew's quotation from Jer. 31:15 in Matt. 2:18 was probably intended to remind his readers of the promise of the new covenant (Jer. 31:31-34). The reference to baptism with the Spirit recalls the related promise in Ezek. 36:24-27 in which God declared, "I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes." This work of the Spirit was highlighted again at Jesus' baptism (3:16). Jesus would have the power to transform human character in a way that John could not. Jesus would also baptize people with fire, a reference to divine judgment against unrepentant sinners.

3:12 A winnowing fan was a pitchfork or scoop-shaped basket used to toss grain into the air. The wind would blow the useless chaff aside while the heavier grain kernels fell to the threshing floor. The chaff would then be gathered up and burned. John's parable thus described a coming divine judgment in which all people are sifted, with the result that the Messiah's followers will be preserved by God while the unrepentant are gathered for punishment. Though chaff is highly flammable and burns away quickly, John made clear that the fire will never go out. God's punishment against unrepentant sinners is eternal.

3:14 By his protest John recognized Jesus' superiority and further identified Jesus as the holy One who would come after him (v. 11). John knew that he needed Jesus' baptism, the baptism of the Spirit, and he also understood that sinless Jesus did not seek water baptism as an expression of repentance.

3:15 Jesus explained that baptism was essential to His perfection. Jesus wished to please His Father by obeying the commands of the prophets (John was the greatest of the

The Three Temptations of Jesus

4 Then was <sup>e</sup>Je'-sus led up of <sup>f</sup>the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil.

2 And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungred.

3 And when the tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread.

prophets; 11:9-13) and by identifying with God's righteous cause among the people. If He had refused to participate in John's baptism, Jesus would have seemed like a rebel rather than One who came to fulfil all righteousness.

3:16 The opening of the heavens demonstrates that both the voice and the descending Spirit came from heaven and were divine. First-century Jews associated the dove with the Spirit since Gen. 1:2 describes the Spirit as hovering over the primeval waters. The Hebrew verb translated "moved" is the same word used to describe a bird fluttering its wings. The descent of the Spirit thus alludes to Gen. 1 and identifies Jesus as One who brings new creation (2 Cor. 5:17; Gal. 6:15).

3:17 The Father speaks directly only twice in Matthew—here at Jesus' baptism and later at the transfiguration. On both occasions He identified Jesus as His Son and expressed approval of Him (see 17:5). Here He alludes to two OT texts: Ps. 2:7 and Isa. 42:1. Psalm 2 was a song sung at the crowning of Israel's kings. The Father's application of this text to Jesus identified Him as a divinely appointed King who would rule with divine authority and whose kingdom would extend to the ends of the earth. The allusion to Isa. 42 identified Jesus as the Servant, the messianic figure who Isa. 53:5 promised would be "wounded for our transgressions" and "bruised for our iniquities." Matthew 12:18-21 explicitly applies Isa. 42 to Jesus, and Matt. 8:17 explicitly applies Isa. 53 to Jesus. The Father's words identify Jesus as King and Saviour.

4:1-2 The temptation of Christ highlights numerous parallels between Jesus and OT Israel. Deuteronomy 8:2-3 says that the Lord led Israel into the wilderness to be tested for 40 years. Similarly, Jesus was led . . . into the wilderness to be tested for forty days. The three temptations Jesus faced parallel the tests Israel faced in the wilderness, and every Scripture that Jesus quoted in response to His temptations were drawn from God's message to the Israelites about their wilderness test (Deut. 6-8). Israel failed its tests, but Jesus passed His and in doing so "fulfilled all righteousness" (Matt. 3:15). Thus He is qualified to create a new spiritual Israel. Later, when He chose 12 disciples to parallel Israel's 12 tribes, He identified His followers as the new Israel. The fact that Jesus hungered shows that He was truly human as well as divine.

4:3 The stones that littered the wilderness floor resembled small round loaves of bread in shape, size, and color.

Interpreters disagree as to why it would have been wrong for Jesus to transform and eat the stones. Most suggest that He was tempted to exercise supernatural power rather than depend on God's provision. Clues in the text suggest that the Spirit, who led Jesus into the wilderness, commanded this fast. Thus, breaking the fast prematurely would have been an act of disobedience, preventing Jesus from fulfilling every act of righteousness (3:15). Jesus aimed to end His fast when the test was over and no sooner. God would signal the end by providing food. Matthew 4:11 shows that at fast's end, angels came and "ministered unto" Jesus. The verb "minister" means "to serve as a table-waiter" (Acts 6:2) and implies that the angels fed Jesus. During their wilderness wanderings, Israel failed to trust God to provide food and water. Jesus, the embodiment of the new Israel, had unwavering trust in God's care. On Son of God, see note at 3:17.

4:4 Jesus is quoting Deut. 8:3. God's words are not idle, but are to be received as commands. Deuteronomy 8:1,6 emphasize the need to obey God's commands, and Deut. 8:1 teaches that man lives by following God's commandments just as 8:3 says that man lives by what comes from God's mouth (Deut. 6:24). Thus the OT text Jesus quoted teaches that obeying God is more important than being well-fed. Israel struggled to learn this truth (Exod. 16:3; Num. 11:4-5). In contrast, Jesus hungered for righteousness more than bread and thirsted for obedience more than water. He urged His disciples to have the same priority (Matt. 5:6).

4:5-7 Satan quoted Ps. 91:11-12 out of context, trying to convince Jesus that the Father would supernaturally protect Him even if He gambled with His life. Jesus responded by quoting Deut. 6:16 which refers to the time when Israel, angry and thirsty, questioned God's presence until He miraculously produced a stream of water from a rock (Exod. 17:7). Had Jesus succumbed to Satan's temptation, it would indicate that His faith was frail and depended on God's miraculous action. Jumping from the pinnacle of the temple would test God by attempting to force Him to perform a miracle.

Satan implied that God is trustworthy only when He rescues us from suffering and danger. Jesus knew better. God is trustworthy even when He allows us or even causes us to suffer. True faith recognizes this and perseveres through hard times. When Jesus suffered on the cross (27:41-44), those who tormented Him used arguments similar to that of the devil. They even quoted Ps. 22:8 to argue that Jesus

8 Again, the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them;

9 And saith unto him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me.

10 Then saith Je'-sus unto him, Get thee hence, Sa'-tan: for it is written, "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

11 Then the devil leaveth him, and, behold, <sup>b</sup>angels came and ministered unto him.

The Preaching Ministry of Jesus

12 ¶ <sup>c</sup>Now when Je'-sus had heard that John was cast into prison, he departed into Gal'-i-lee;

13 And leaving Naz'-a-reth, he came and dwelt in Ca-per'-na-um, which is upon the sea coast, in the borders of Za-bu'-lon and Neph'-tha-lim:

14 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by E-sa'-ias the prophet, saying, 17 ¶ <sup>f</sup>From that time Je'-sus began to preach, and to say, <sup>g</sup>Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

The Calling of the First Four Disciples

18 ¶ <sup>h</sup>And Je'-sus, walking by the sea of Gal'-i-lee, saw two brethren, Si'-mon 'called Pe'-ter, and An'-drew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.

19 And he saith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men.

20 <sup>k</sup>And they straightway left their nets, and followed him.

21 <sup>l</sup>And going on from thence, he saw other two brethren, James the son of Zeb'-e-dee, and John his brother, in a ship with Zeb'-e-dee would be rescued if God really loved Him, much as Satan quoted Ps. 91:11-12 to argue that God would rescue Jesus from a deadly fall if He were really God's Son. Again, Jesus knew better. He trusted God even through a brutal scourging, even when nails were driven through His limbs, and even when God let Him suffer a horrible death.

4:8-9 Although Satan exercises some authority over the world (Luke 4:6; John 12:31), the kingdoms of the world belong to God, and He promised to give them to the Messiah (Ps. 2:8).

4:10-11 Jesus responded to Satan by quoting from Deut. 6:14 and 10:20. If Jesus had worshipped Satan in order to gain worldly power, it would have indicated that He valued creation more than the Creator and the kingdoms of the earth more than the kingdom of God. Jesus insisted that only God is worthy of worship. After citing Deut. 6:13, Jesus' reception of worship later in this Gospel (8:2; 9:18; 14:33; 15:25; 20:20; 28:9,17) without rebuking the worshipper (cp. Acts 10:25-26; 14:11-15) strongly implies His deity. That the angels came to serve Jesus further implies His superior status.

4:12 John the Baptist had been imprisoned because he dared to say that Herod Antipas's marriage to his brother's wife was immoral. As tetrarch of Galilee and Perea (Luke 3:1), Herod did not have jurisdiction over Judaea, the locale of Jesus' baptism and wilderness temptation. Thus Jesus fearlessly marched into the heart of Herod's territory when He heard of John's arrest. In Luke 13:31-33, the Pharisees urged Jesus to leave Galilee in order to escape arrest by Herod. Jesus replied by calling Herod "that fox" and insisted that He would travel to Jerusalem only because it was necessary for Him to die there, not to flee Herod. Jesus caused kings to tremble (2:3; 14:1-2), but He Himself feared no man.

4:13 At this point Jesus made an important strategic move by shifting his headquarters from Nazareth to Capernaum. Nazareth was an obscure village, but Capernaum was a much larger fishing center on the shores of lake Galilee.

It boasted a tax collection station and a Roman garrison of at least 100 soldiers. Upon the sea alludes to Isaiah's prophecies, which describe the area as "the way of the sea," an ancient trade route stretching from Damascus down to Caesarea Maritima on the coast of the Mediterranean sea. By the time of Christ, the Romans had built a stone road along the route, allowing caravans to travel from Syria and pass through Capernaum on the way to Caesarea. Capernaum also provided boat access to every other city along the Galilaeen coast. Thus Jesus was able to reach many Jews and Gentiles.

4:14-16 Matthew's quotation of Isa. 9:1-2 highlights the international focus of Jesus' ministry by describing the region as Galilee of the Gentiles. Second Kings 15:29 and 17:24-27 show that after the Jews were deported from the northern kingdom of Israel, foreigners flooded into Galilee. For instance, reports from the geographer Strabo and first-century Jewish historian Josephus show that Egyptians, Arabians, Phoenicians, and Greeks lived in Galilee. The Apocrypha (1 Maccabees 5) says Galilee's population was largely Gentile and heathen. Jesus' move to Galilee and the strategically located city of Capernaum shows His intention to save Gentiles as well as Jews. Matthew's application of Isa. 9 also shows that Jesus was the great King called "Mighty God" who would reign from David's throne over a universal and eternal kingdom, liberate God's people from spiritual slavery, and bring peace and joy to the world (Isa. 9:3-7).

4:17 On the significance of the words from that time, see "Structure" in the Introduction. Jesus' message was identical to the message proclaimed by John the Baptist before his arrest. This identifies Jesus as the One who came after John (3:11) whom John had identified from Isa. 40:3 as the Lord God Himself (see note at Matt. 3:2).

4:18-22 Jesus' command, Follow me, urged the disciples not just to accompany Him on His travels but to follow His example and emulate His character. Following Jesus involved significant sacrifice for these men. They abandoned their careers as fishermen and placed commitment their father, mending their nets; and he called them.

22 And they immediately left the ship and their father, and followed him.

The Healing Ministry of Jesus

23 ¶ And Je'-sus went about all Gal'-i-lee, <sup>a</sup>teaching in their synagogues, and preaching <sup>b</sup>the gospel of the kingdom, <sup>c</sup>and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people.

24 And his fame went throughout all Syr'-i-a: and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatick, and those that had the palsy; and he healed them.

25 <sup>d</sup>And there followed him great multitudes of people from Gal'-i-lee, and from Decap'-o-lis, and from Je-ru'-sa-lem, and from Ju-dæ'-a, and from beyond Jor'-dan.

The Beatitudes

5 And seeing the multitudes, <sup>e</sup>he went up into a mountain: and when he was set, his disciples came unto him:

2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,

3 <sup>f</sup>Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

4 <sup>g</sup>Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

5 <sup>h</sup>Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.

to Jesus above commitment to their own families (10:37; 19:29).

4:23 Jesus' ministry in the synagogues shows that He initially focused His ministry on the Jewish population of Galilee. The gospel of the kingdom, the primary topic of Jesus' preaching, was that the long-awaited Messiah, the human ruler through whom God would establish His reign on earth, had come at last. This was the message proclaimed by John the Baptist (3:2), preached by Jesus (4:17), and emphasized by Matthew through his mention of Jesus' Davidic lineage, the account of His miraculous birth, and his record of the visit of the magi. All manner means no type of ailment was beyond Jesus' power to heal.

4:24 Syria was located just north of Galilee. Not surprisingly, word of Jesus' healings quickly spread to that region, crossing geographical and language barriers. Soon Syrians began bringing their sick for Jesus to heal. By consenting to this, Jesus distinguished Himself from some later Jewish interpreters who urged Jews to give no aid to a drowning Gentile or a Gentile woman giving birth (Maimonides). Matthew says Jesus healed possessed people, but some scholars argue that these people had natural diseases. However, this verse distinguishes natural diseases from demon possession, which proves that the ancients differentiated between the two.

4:25 Jesus' earliest followers hailed from Jewish and Gentile regions. Jerusalem and Judaea were Jewish regions, Galilee had a mixture of Jews and Gentiles, and Decapolis was a group of predominantly Gentile cities. Jesus desired to serve, heal, teach, and save all the nations of the earth (28:18-20). He came as the world's Messiah.

5:1 Jesus deemed the mountain to be a good setting for teaching a large group. As the new Moses, His delivery of God's message from a mountaintop provides yet another parallel with the ancient Moses. The Greek words translated he went up into a mountain are used three times in the Greek OT (Exod. 19:3; 24:18; 34:4), and all three fall in the section describing Moses' ascent of mount Sinai.

5:3 Since Matthew introduces the Sermon on the Mount by highlighting the connection between Jesus and Moses, the Beatitudes (Matt. 5:3-12) should probably be read against the backdrop of Moses' teachings. The only time the adjective "Blessed" (Gk makarios) was used by Moses was in his blessing on Israel (Deut. 33:29). Israel's blessing had both a historical and future focus. Historically, they were "saved" by being delivered out of Egypt. The remainder of the blessing assured the Israelites of future success in their conquest of the promised land. Against this backdrop, the blessings of the new Moses identify Jesus' disciples as the new Israel who will enjoy a new exodus and conquest. The new Moses is a spiritual deliverer rather than a political one, and His promises must be understood in that light. Jesus pronounces spiritual salvation (exodus from slavery to sin) and promises spiritual victory (conquest and inheritance of a new promised land). This background is confirmed by the allusion to Israel's exodus and conquest in the promise that the meek will "inherit the earth" (5:5).

In the OT, the poor were those who cried out for God's help, depended entirely on Him for their needs, had a humble and contrite spirit, experienced His deliverance, and enjoyed His undeserved favor (Ps. 86:1-5). In light of this background, Jesus was describing His disciples as unworthy sinners who depend on God's grace for salvation. Although the promises in Matt. 5:4-9 are expressed in the future tense, the affirmation theirs is the kingdom of heaven is in the present tense (5:3,10). This suggests that the kingdom had already arrived through the coming of Jesus but that the fulfillment of many kingdom promises will occur only in the future. This future fulfillment awaits Christ's second coming. The statement "theirs is the kingdom of heaven" appears at the beginning and end of the main body of the Beatitudes (5:3,10). This bracketing device suggests that the Beatitudes constitute promises only to those who belong to the kingdom. Isaiah 61:1 promised that the Messiah would bring good news to the poor. This beatitude serves as a fulfillment of that prophecy (Luke 4:16-21).

5:4 This beatitude is also dependent on Isa. 61:1-3. The context of Isa. 61 portrays mourning as expressive of Israel's sorrow over the exile, which their sins had caused. In this light, Matt. 5:4 expresses the grief of those suffering the consequences of sin. Theirs is an attitude of repentance.

5:5 Like the preceding Beatitudes, this one parallels Isa. 61. Isaiah 61:7 (LXX) uses the words "they shall inherit the earth," an exact parallel to Matt. 5:5b. The first three Beatitudes thus confirm Jesus' identity as the Servant of Isa. 61. This identification is important for understanding the sacrificial nature of Jesus' death since Isa. 52:14-53:12 describes the Servant as suffering the punishment that sinners deserved (see Matt. 8:17 and 12:17-21 which appeal to Isa. 53:4 and 42:1-4). The beatitude also echoes Ps. 37:11 in the which the meek are those who stubbornly trust God

6 Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: <sup>a</sup>for they shall be filled.

7 Blessed are the merciful: <sup>b</sup>for they shall obtain mercy.

8 <sup>c</sup>Blessed are the pure in heart: for <sup>d</sup>they shall see God.

9 Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.

10 <sup>e</sup>Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

The Salt of the Earth

13 ¶ Ye are the salt of the earth: <sup>j</sup>but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men.

<sup>j</sup>ch. 23:34,37; Neh. 9:26; 2 Chron. 36:16; Acts 7:52; 1 Thess. 2:15 and surrender to His authority even when they cannot make sense of their circumstances. Inherit the earth in the OT refers to inheriting the promised land of Canaan. Thus most of Jesus' hearers recognized that His disciples were a new Israel that would inherit the land promised to Abraham. In the context of the Sermon on the Mount and the Gospel of Matthew as a whole, "inheriting the earth" involves more than the promise of living in Israel. It refers to living in a recreated earth over which Christ rules eternally. Matthew 19:28 anticipates the renewal of earth and assures Jesus' disciples that they will enjoy great reward in the eternal kingdom.

5:6 Hunger and thirst are metaphors for a disciple's fervent desire for righteousness. The words they shall be filled are in the passive voice, indicating that righteousness is not something that disciples can achieve by their own efforts. The verb here, like those in the promises of Matt. 5:4,6-7 (and possibly 9), is a "divine passive" that describes an act of God. This is crucial to understanding the theology of the Sermon on the Mount, where Jesus required His disciples to keep the least of the commandments (5:19), surpass the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees (5:20), and to be "perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect" (5:48). Such demands can be twisted into a false theology in which righteousness is achieved by works, but the righteousness Jesus demands of us is actually a divine gift.

5:7 The merciful are those who relate to others with a forgiving and compassionate spirit (6:2-4; 18:21-35). God will show mercy to the merciful.

5:8 The pure in heart are authentically righteous in their inner person. Righteousness can be faked, as was the case with the Pharisees (23:25-28). Jesus said true purity is attained when God grants it to the person who hungers and thirsts for it. Complete fulfillment of this divine promise will occur at Jesus' return, but the identification of His disciples as those who are pure shows that dramatic transformation occurs even in this lifetime (John 15:13). The promise that Jesus' disciples shall see God is not to be interpreted figuratively as if it refers merely to special insight into God's nature or to a visionary experience. Rather, it looks forward to the time when they will literally behold God in all His glory. The new Moses promises His followers access to God that not even the ancient Moses was allowed to experience (Exod. 33:12-23).

5:9 The ministry of peacemaking involves resolving conflict by making prompt apologies and acts of restitution, refusing to seek revenge, and humbly serving and loving one's enemies (5:21-26,38-41,43-48). The promise probably means that Jesus' authentic disciples emulate God by undertaking the ministry of reconciliation. Thus at the final judgment they shall be accepted as the children of God.

5:10 The purest form of righteousness is pursued by disciples who know that their good deeds will demand great sacrifice and will result in pain rather than immediate reward. This is the epitome of the kingdom righteousness demanded by the Sermon on the Mount. Jesus pronounced that the kingdom of heaven belongs to those who suffer for righteousness. In the Greek text, theirs is shifted from its normal position at the end of the clause to the beginning instead. This gives the pronoun a special emphasis indicating that the kingdom belongs to righteous sufferers and to them alone. Those who always endeavor to evade persecution are not true disciples and will not have a share in the kingdom because true disciples follow Jesus even at the cost of their lives (16:24-27). The kingdom of heaven is the reign of God in the person of Jesus the Messiah. Righteous sufferers are subjects of God's rule through their submission to Jesus' authority. Jesus inaugurated this kingdom during His ministry, but it will be consummated in the end times.

5:11-12 Jesus' words show that persecution is typically either verbal or violent. Verbal forms include insult and slander. The word persecute includes acts of physical violence like the slap of Matt. 5:39. Jesus promised that the cost of discipleship will be offset by the enormity of the reward the disciple enjoys in heaven. Jewish leaders rejected and vehemently persecuted the OT prophets, and Jesus repeatedly denounced this persecution (21:34-36; 23:29-37). By treating Jesus' followers in the same way they had treated the prophets, Jewish persecutors unwittingly bestowed on them a prophet's honor.

5:13 Salt has many uses, but in the OT it is most often a purifying agent (Exod. 30:35; Lev. 2:13; 2 Kings 2:21; Ezek. 16:4). As the salt of the earth, Jesus' disciples are to purify a corrupt world through their example of righteous living and their proclamation of the gospel. However, contaminated salt does not promote purity. The verb translated lost his savour indicates foolish and immoral behavior. It refers to a professing disciple whose unrighteous lifestyle promotes destruction rather than purification. Such salt is only good for spreading over ground where you want to kill vegetation. Such is the fatal effect of an unrighteous disciple's lifestyle. Nothing grows where they go. The verb cast out describes the disposal of something worthless, and the verb trodden alludes to the treatment an immoral disciple receives from the world.

14 <sup>a</sup>Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid.

15 Neither do men <sup>b</sup>light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house.

16 Let your light so shine before men, <sup>c</sup>that they may see your good works, and <sup>d</sup>glorify your Father which is in heaven.

17 ¶ <sup>e</sup>Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil.

18 For verily I say unto you, <sup>f</sup>Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.

19 <sup>g</sup>Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.

20 For I say unto you, That except your righteousness shall exceed <sup>h</sup>the righteousness of the scribes and Phar'-i-sees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven.

Teachings on Temptation

27 ¶ Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, <sup>p</sup>Thou shalt not commit adultery:

5:14-16 This is an allusion to Isa. 9:1-2; 42:6; 49:6—texts that describe the ministry of the Messiah, Servant of the Lord. It indicates that Jesus' disciples are to be extensions of His ministry, carrying salvation to the ends of the earth. Such ministry is intrinsic to true discipleship. A disciple should no more conceal his righteousness or the gospel message than a glowing city should douse its light at night. The reference to giving light unto all combines with the reference to the world to show that Christ's ministry is intended for all people. This anticipates the Great Commission of Matt. 28:18-20.

The disciple is not the ultimate author of his good works. If the disciple were the author of his good works, he would justly receive praise. However, Jesus taught that only the Father in heaven is to be praised for a disciple's good works, for He is the true source of such works (see note at v. 6). This must not be overlooked. The righteousness demanded by the Sermon on the Mount is a divine gift that God imparts to Jesus' followers.

5:17-20 Jesus defended Himself against charges that He defied the law (9:3,11,14; 12:2,10; 15:1-2; 17:24; 19:3; 22:34-36) by insisting that He came to fulfil both the law and the prophets, which together amount to the entire OT. The word "fulfil" may refer to fulfillment of OT prophecies (1:22; 2:15,17,23; 4:14; 8:17; 12:17; 13:35; 21:4; 26:54,56; 27:9). This is suggested by the words all be fulfilled. However, it can also refer to obedience to God's commands (3:15). This additional meaning is implied by the reference to practicing these commandments. Consequently, Jesus' words imply that He would fulfill all of the OT promises and obey all its commandments. The jot is the Hebrew letter jod, which resembles an English apostrophe. The tittle is a slight pen stroke that distinguishes similar letters, like the tail that distinguishes 'j' from 'i' in English. Jesus' statement shows that He regarded the OT as accurate and reliable down to the smallest detail. In keeping with this conviction, Jesus taught that fidelity to the OT witness determines a disciple's stature in His kingdom. True fidelity to God's commands is made possible by God's miraculous work in a disciple's heart (see note at v. 6).

5:21-22 Matthew 5:21 begins a section of the Sermon on the Mount generally known as the "Six Antitheses." The title may seem to imply that Jesus opposed the OT in some way, but in reality He always upheld its authority. Rather than contradicting or overturning OT teachings, Jesus opposed the misguided interpretations of the scribes and Pharisees. These men were concerned only with superficial matters, but Jesus went deeper. He argued that the law prohibits not just actual murder but murderous attitudes as well. Similarly, violent temperaments are condemned just as surely as violent deeds.

5:23-24 Disciples must attempt at their earliest opportunity to reconcile with a brother or sister who has something against them, even if doing so interrupts important business. Speaking to the context of His day, Jesus said disciples should seek reconciliation even if it meant halting in the middle of offering sacrifices at the Jerusalem temple. This interruption was significant since Jesus' original audience (located away from Jerusalem) would have to abandon their gift at the altar, travel for days to reach Galilee and seek reconciliation, and then return to Judaea to complete the sacrifice. Such is the priority of reconciliation.

5:25-26 A person can typically pay a smaller penalty for their offense by seeking an out-of-court settlement rather than waiting for the issue to be settled in court. This illustrates that reconciliation is urgent because the longer it is postponed, the more severe the consequences.

5:27-28 Jesus said that gazing on a member of the opposite sex for the purpose of arousing illicit sexual desire

28 But I say unto you, That whosoever <sup>a</sup>looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.

29 <sup>b</sup>And if thy right eye offend thee, <sup>c</sup>pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.

30 And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.

Teachings on Forgiveness

38 ¶ Ye have heard that it hath been said, <sup>m</sup>An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth:

39 But I say unto you, <sup>n</sup>That ye resist not evil: <sup>o</sup>but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.

40 And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloke also.

41 And whosoever <sup>p</sup>shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain.

1 Thess. 5:15; 1 Pet. 3:9 <sup>q</sup>Isa. 50:6; Lam. 3:30 <sup>r</sup>5:41 ch. 27:32; Mark 15:21 is adultery of the heart. True righteousness therefore seeks to avoid not only adulterous acts but also adulterous thoughts.

5:29-30 Self-mutilation and amputation are not effective ways to overcome sin. After all, sin arises from a corrupt heart rather than flesh and bone (15:19). Jesus here uses hyperbole (intentional exaggeration for the sake of making a point) and allegory (in which the eye represents a lustful perspective and the hand represents an immoral deed) in order to convey a vital requirement of discipleship. Disciples should put a stop to thoughts and behaviors that contribute to immorality.

5:31-32 Jesus challenged a loose rabbinic paraphrase of Deut. 24:1 that distorted the original meaning of the text. In the hands of the rabbis, Deut. 24:1 greatly multiplied the number of offenses that could justify divorce, such as fading beauty or a tendency to burn food. Jesus kept true to Deut. 24:1 and insisted that fornication is the legitimate grounds for divorce. People who divorce for frivolous reasons and remarry are guilty of adultery since their original marriage covenant has not been genuinely dissolved.

5:33-37 Oaths unto the Lord (i.e., "I swear to God") were considered binding, but since Jews avoided use of God's personal name and instead used reverent substitutions, clever liars could take an oath that seemed to appeal to God without technically doing so (23:16-22). Jesus taught that swearing oaths is wrong since oaths call for the destruction of an object or person if the oath is broken. Thus, swearing by heaven . . . earth . . . Jerusalem, or even one's own head is inappropriate because it implies that we have the authority to destroy things over which God alone has authority. Swearing against God or His belongings aligns us with the evil one who attempted to assume God's position as Ruler of the universe.

5:38-39 Jesus explained that eye for an eye (Exod. 21:24; Lev. 24:20; Deut. 19:21) was given not as a mandate for personal vengeance but as a principle to guide courts in determining appropriate punishments. The slap on the right cheek was a back-handed slap that was both insulting and injurious. For this act Jewish law imposed a fine that was double the one for an open-palmed blow on the left cheek. Thus we see that Jesus urged His disciples not to seek vengeance even against the most offensive kind of blow. The words resist not evil do not indicate, however, that we should not seek justice or defend ourselves when threatened with serious bodily harm.

5:40 Frivolous lawsuits were rare in first-century Israel, and so the suit described here was probably a legitimate one which the plaintiff was likely to win. Jewish law permitted an opponent to sue for possession of an offender's inner garment, the coat. Typically it was a sleeved tunic that extended to the ankles. These could be valuable and were frequently used for bartering or making payments. The cloke was an outer robe or wrap. It was the more essential piece of clothing since it provided warmth and could double as a blanket for the poor. Based on OT texts such as Exod. 22:26-27 and Deut. 24:12-13, Jewish law insisted that the cloak was exempt from seizure by the courts (m. B. Qam. 8:6)—it was too severe a punishment. Jesus thus commanded His disciples to do even more than the courts allowed when seeking reconciliation with an opponent.

5:41 Jesus likely had in mind the much-resented practice of compulsion, in which Roman officials could force their subjects to perform menial tasks such as hauling a load on their backs (27:32). It is often said that soldiers could legally compel a subject to carry a load for only one mile before letting them go, but no surviving text establishes this as law. Most likely compulsion was usually limited to a mile simply out of common sense: people are tired after hauling a

Teachings on Loving One's Enemies

<sup>43</sup> ¶ Ye have heard that it hath been said, <sup>b</sup>Thou shalt love thy neighbour, <sup>c</sup>and hate thine enemy.

<sup>45</sup> That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for <sup>f</sup>he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.

<sup>46</sup> <sup>g</sup>For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same?

<sup>47</sup> And if ye salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others? do not even the publicans so?

Teachings on Giving

<sup>2</sup> Therefore <sup>j</sup>when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

Teachings on Prayer

<sup>5</sup> ¶ And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

<sup>6</sup> But thou, when thou prayest, <sup>l</sup>enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.

<sup>7</sup> But when ye pray, <sup>m</sup>use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: <sup>n</sup>for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking.

<sup>8</sup> Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.

load for a mile, and soldiers who pressed for more than this risked fostering dangerous resentment among subjugated peoples. In contrast to this, Jesus said His disciples should carry their oppressor's pack out of obligation for the first mile, but then exceed all expectations by going a second mile as an act of love and service.

5:42 Since this entire paragraph is devoted to Jesus' teaching against retaliation, this verse probably prohibits disciples from seeking vengeance against opponents by refusing to help them in a time of need. By giving the necessities of life to an enemy, disciples may restore broken relationships (Rom. 12:19-21).

5:43 The words love thy neighbor appear in Lev. 19:18. However, the command hate thine enemy does not appear anywhere in the OT. Evidently some of Jesus' contemporaries argued that the command to love your neighbor also implied the opposite.

5:44-45 Loving enemies and praying for one's persecutors does not make a person God's child. Only rebirth does that. However, the sort of forgiving love Jesus mentions displays your family resemblance to the heavenly Father, and thus serves as a sign to your true identity. God's blessing on both His friends and His enemies serves as an example.

5:46-47 Publicans (tax collectors) were despised because they often collected more than the legal tax and served Rome at the expense of their downtrodden fellow Jews. Jesus taught that selfish behavior resembles the behavior of tax collectors, not the character of the heavenly Father.

5:48 Much as a child resembles his biological parents, spiritual children bear close resemblance to their heavenly Father. Consequently, Jesus' disciples are commanded to exhibit moral perfection. The close connection between this verse and Jesus' teaching about love (vv. 43-47) suggests that unconditional love is the most crucial expression of God's character in the life of His followers.

6:1 Jesus did not prohibit public acts of righteousness (see note at 5:16), but He warned that the motivation for such acts is most important. All such deeds must be done for God's glory, not human reputation. Those who seek human acclaim when performing good works will receive no heavenly reward. In 6:2-18 Jesus supplies general principles for performing righteous acts.

6:2-4 The word when assumes that disciples will regularly assist needy people. To sound a trumpet is likely a reference to tossing coins noisily into the trumpet-shaped opening on the coffer and thereby calling attention to one's generosity. The word hypocrites (Gk hupocrites) originally referred to actors who performed in Greek or Roman theaters. The hypocrites to whom Jesus referred are spiritual actors who pretend to have piety in order to win human approval. The instructions about the left hand and the right hand prohibit a person from celebrating their own acts of righteousness. Give liberally, but never dwell on the fact that you do so.

6:6 A closet (Gk tameion) was a room that did not have doors or windows to the building's exterior. Since the true disciple prays for a heavenly rather than a human audience, privacy is ideal for genuine prayer. Jesus described the Father as the One who is in secret. The disciple can encounter Him in the most obscure locations.

6:7 The babbling of heathen may refer to the meaningless gibberish that appears in Greek magical papyri. Like the familiar "abracadabra," these formulas were nonsensical combinations of sounds that were believed to have special

Teachings on Fasting

16 ¶ Moreover <sup>k</sup>when ye fast, be not, as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance: for they disfigure their faces, that they may appear unto men to fast. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

17 But thou, when thou fastest, <sup>l</sup>anoint thine head, and wash thy face;

18 That thou appear not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father which is in secret: and thy Father, which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly.

22 <sup>o</sup>The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light.

23 But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!

24 ¶ <sup>p</sup>No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. <sup>q</sup>Ye cannot serve God and mam'-mon.

Teachings on Worry

25 Therefore I say unto you, <sup>r</sup>Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?

26 <sup>s</sup>Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?

power. Ancient texts show that Jews sometimes embraced these practices.

6:9 By commanding His disciples to pray after this manner rather than simply "pray this," Jesus demonstrated that this prayer was offered as a model rather than a mantra to be recited. The first person plural pronoun Our implies that Jesus intended this prayer to be a model for corporate prayer, i.e., a prayer for when disciples gather as a group. This confirms that Matt. 6:5 was not intended to prohibit disciples from praying together publicly in the synagogue or other gatherings but instead prohibited prayers that were motivated by religious showmanship. Jesus expected His disciples to live righteous lives that hallow or honor rather than profane God's name (5:16; Lev. 22:31-32). This is an important precondition for successful prayer.

6:10 In light of parallels with contemporary Jewish prayers and Jesus' teaching that the kingdom of God is a present reality but also awaits a fuller future consummation, the petition Thy kingdom come has a present and a future focus. The petition asks that disciples submit more fully to God's will as subjects of His reign through Jesus. We should daily pray for the future consummation of God's rule in which He will reign fully and completely over the earth.

6:11 Daily bread was the amount of bread necessary to survive for a day. Jesus wanted His disciples to live in a state of constant dependence on God and His provision (Prov. 30:8-9).

6:12 The Greek grammar indicates that the disciple prays for forgiveness from God only after having first expressed forgiveness to others.

6:14-15 God forgives those who are truly repentant. True repentance results in a willingness to forgive others.

6:16 The Jewish practice was to smear ashes on the face and wear grim expressions during times of fasting. Although these acts originally expressed true repentance, hypocrites adopted them as a mask of false piety.

6:17 The word when assumes the disciples will fast regularly.

6:19-20 The larvae of the moth could quickly destroy valuable fabrics. The word rust is literally "eating." It can refer to the pitting of metal coins or to vermin in food stores.

6:21 Jesus taught that a person's heart truly belongs to what it most treasures. Since a disciple is to love God with all his heart (22:37; Deut. 6:4), love for material possessions and riches is a subtle form of idolatry (Col. 3:5).

6:22-23 In Jewish writings, a good eye represented a generous attitude and a bad eye a stingy, miserly attitude. The single eye is sincere and focused. The evil eye (an improper perspective on wealth) results in a deep internal darkness, a moral blindness that diminishes the ability to see and pursue what is good.

6:25 This rabbinic-style argument reasons that if God does a greater thing for us, He will also do lesser things. Specifically, if God created you (the greater accomplishment), He is certainly capable of feeding you (a lesser accomplishment).

6:26 Jesus here reversed His previous argument and reasoned that if God bothers to do a lesser thing (feeding

27 Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature?

28 And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin:

29 And yet I say unto you, That even Sol<sup>o</sup>-omon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

30 Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?

31 Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed?

32 (For after all these things do the Gen<sup>t</sup>-tiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.

33 But <sup>a</sup>seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.

34 Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

Judging and Being Judged

wildfowl), He will assuredly accomplish the greater thing (feeding humans).

6:27 The words translated as add one cubit unto his stature probably refer to longevity. Worry is futile and cannot prolong your life.

6:30 Jesus revealed that the real cause of anxiety is when disciples have little faith, meaning doubt about God's power and disbelief in His desire to provide for His children.

6:32 Obsession with material possessions displays the warped priorities of Gentiles (Col. 3:5).

6:33 The disciple who values the reign of God over his life and who diligently pursues righteous living can trust God to satisfy his needs.

6:34 Jesus did not prohibit planning for the future, but He did prohibit worrying about it. He urged His disciples instead to focus on the challenges of the present.

7:1 Jesus did not intend to prohibit all acts of judgment. Elsewhere He commanded believers to discern the actions of others (v. 15; 18:15-20). What Jesus condemned is hypocritical judgment that focuses on the faults of others while excusing one's own sins.

7:2 Jesus warned that those who use a harsh standard of judgment when evaluating others can expect God to use the same harsh standard when they face His judgment.

7:3-5 The mote, perhaps a piece of sawdust, represents a small fault. The beam, a piece of large timber, represents a major moral fault. He who corrects the minor faults of others without attending to his own more serious faults is a hypocrite. Believers do have a responsibility to help one another repent of sins, but only after first dealing with their own serious sins.

7:6 The holy probably refers to sacrificial meat. Dogs would devour it insensibly without appreciating its sacredness. In Jesus' allegory, this sacrificial meat symbolizes His own sacred teachings. The dogs symbolize the wicked who disregard the value of His teachings. First-century teachers referred to pearls symbolically to speak of insightful and valuable teaching. Consequently, the pearls here symbolize Jesus' teachings given by the disciples. Swine were ritually unclean animals. They symbolize the wicked and unclean. Pigs eat spoiled food but have no appreciation for pearls, just as the wicked consume wicked pleasures but disregard the gospel. This contempt for the gospel is pictured by the pig trampling the pearls underfoot. That pigs may turn against the one offering the pearls shows that contempt for the gospel message can become contempt for the gospel messenger, as has often happened in history.

7:7-8 While some people interpret these verses as a promise that God will give disciples whatever they pray for, linguistic connections between these verses and other portions of the Sermon on the Mount suggest that Jesus promised that those who ask, seek, and knock will be invited to enter His kingdom. The command to ask is tied to the promise of "good things" to those who ask in verse 11. In the Lukan parallel, these good things are interpreted as the Holy Spirit who transforms the disciple and makes him fit for the kingdom. Seek uses the same Greek verb as 6:33, "seek ye first the kingdom of God." Knock likely refers to knocking on the gate of the kingdom (mentioned in vv. 13-14).

7:9-10 Round loaves of bread resemble smooth, brown stones. Certain fish in the sea of Galilee resemble snakes.

7:11 Jesus' description of humans as being evil disproves the modern concept that people are basically good. Although Jesus acknowledged that humans may perform
